Dairy Herd Replacement:
Here Is How These Farmers Do It Successfully

BY PAT PURCELL

Editor's note: This is the first article in a series discussing dairy herd replacement programs.

LITITZ — The most important part of the dairy herd is the milking cow.

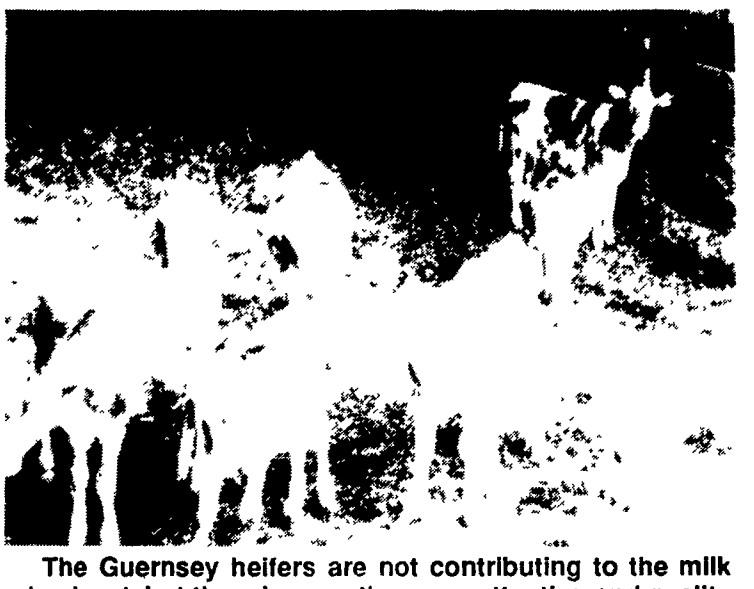
True or false.

The temptation to answer true to that statement is easily understood. After all it is the milking cow which determines the cash flow of the operation. But although the milking cow generates the monthly income, the future, the survival, the stability of the dairy farm is dependant upon the quality of the heifers. While it may be easier for the farmer to be attentive to the animals which determine the size of the milk check, if the young stock is not properly attended, the dairy farm's future will be cut short.

HERD REPLACEMENT: GOALS, COSTS, CONSIDERATIONS

Dairy herd replacement is a multi-faceted and long-term project. A successful replacement program begins with breeding and ends with a successful culling program, with many variables and critical considerations in between. Simply, dairy herd replacement is not only the process of raising healthy heifers. It is much more than that.

The goal of any business person is to keep cash flowing by keeping production up and costs down. In an effort to improve milk production and subsequently income the dairy herd must be in a constant and steady state of transition. Breeding, selection and culling keep the better producers in the milking stalls.



The Guernsey heifers are not contributing to the milk check yet, but they deserve the same attention and quality care as the milking cows.

Low producers, whether aged cows, or cows with health and/or breeding problems, reach a point when they are no longer cost effective to keep in the herd. They can actually cost the operator more dollars than they make by taking up the stall which could be occupied by a heifer of better quality. The low producer can cost the business more if kept than replaced.

Although it may at first appear simple, the decision to cull an individual cow is a complicated procedure. Culling does not begin when the cow reaches the herd. Culling

Farmers Union Chief Tells State Convention About Opportunities

WEST MIDDLESEX — An opportunity exists for Pennsylvania Farmers Union members to guide family agriculture away from profiteering by giant conglomerates and back to the values of providing a fair income for producers. That was the message National Farmers Union President Cy Carpenter told members and delegates attending PFU's annual convention at the Sheraton Shenango Inn here.

Carpenter said that if farmers don't stand up for their rights, Pennsylvania can expect to lose $100 million from its economy through expected cuts in dairy prices, and farmers can expect to find their land trading on Wall Street.

The family farm leader objected to a possibility outlined in a Jane Bryant Quinn column that appeared in the June 22 issue of Newsweek. Quinn wrote, "Right now, farmers themselves are the biggest buyers of their neighbors' properties. Agriculture is not yet being routinely chopped into neat little units and tied with a ribbon for Wall Street's investment machines. That day will come Ten years from now wheat farms may be packaged for Individual Retirement Accounts the way apartment houses are today."

Citing the instability of Wall Street markets, Carpenter asked the farmers, "How many of you would like to be farming on land subject to trading on Wall Street? Current policies are moving in that direction." He said, "We do need development and progress, but not as a cheap substitute for a fair

Eastern President Says We Need Regional Approach

FORKSVILLE (Sullivan Co.) — Laverne McCarty has always had strong convictions about marketing and promoting milk.

So it was no surprise this fall when the Sullivan County, Pa., was elected president of the 3700-member Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative.

Or when two weeks later he was reappointed director of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

McCarty has been on the go ever since.

In Washington, it is predicted the USDA will cut dairy supports 50¢ a hundred on January 1. This to control surpluses.

"But that doesn't make any sense in the Northeast," Laverne insists. "We're short. Eastern's scrambling for milk."

Where is the surplus then?

"On the west coast," he says.

McCarty and other Northeast dairy leaders complain that local dairymen shouldn't take the rap for a west coast production splurge. They'd like to see a regional approach to such dairy problems.

To meet that goal, they've formed the Northeast Legislative Committee of Farm Cooperatives and hired a fulltime Washington lobbyist.

PA Members To Receive Highest FFA Degree

Sixteen members of the Pennsylvania FFA Association will receive their American Farmer Degrees at the National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Missouri, this week.

The American Farmer Degree is based on demonstrated leadership ability and outstanding agricultural production, processing on service records. As the highest degree members can achieve, only 728 of the 416,000 members who earned Chapter and State Farmer Degrees will receive the National Award.

American Farmer recipients from Pennsylvania are: Carl Warren Allen, Granville Summit, (Troy FFA Chapter, Troy Area Senior High School); John Samuel Byers, Shippensburg, (Shippensburg FFA Chapter, Shippensburg Area Sr. H.S.); Eric L. Corle, Roaring Spring, (Northern Bedford County FFA Chapter, Northern Bedford Co. H.S.); Kenneth R. Diebold, Altoona, (Warriors Mark FFA Chapter, Tyrone Area High School); Frank L. Hartley, Ronks, ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures settled higher but off session highs in late selling initiated by a sell-off in the bean complex. Corn followed action in the soybean pit throughout most of the session, but with no fresh fundamental news of its own it was not able to hold earlier gains. Some support came from hopes of near-term export business with Mex. and continued light movement at higher basis levels. Spreading activity was dominant, some of which was the rolling over of hedge positions into the new contract months. PIK and Roll is virtually at a standstill and generic certificate premiums remained steady.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybean futures prices were mixed in heavy trading today. The November option hit a high of $5.55-1/2 shortly after noon, and late profit-taking eroded all gains. Talk of heavy CCC bean resales yesterday and today weighed on January and March options late in the session. When January penetrated key resistance of $5.60, selling turned intense and January failed to hold that level encouraging long liquidation. Meal and Oil lost ground on news of a report that India was not going to import Vegoil offered to it under a U.S. aid package. January closed this afternoon down 1-3/4 cents at $5.53-1/2 after posting a high of $5.62-1/4.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures settled mixed with the nearby months posting higher closes awaiting further USSR export bonus news. Gains were limited today as traders were anticipating the upcoming CCC weekly auction of closed to 10 million bushels on Friday. December closed 1-1/2 cents higher at $2.88-3/4 after posting a high of $2.91-1/4 on spillover strength from the soybean complex. Premiums for generic certificates remained steady.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Live cattle futures closed mixed with gains made yesterday in the nearby months eroding on selling tied to profit taking and consolidation in front of the Cattle on Feed report. Selling in the feeder cattle pit was tied to weak cash fundamentals. Activity was light in view of the holiday and prices remained fairly steady most of the session.

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Live hog futures closed lower this afternoon pressured by profit-taking late in the session. December traded as high as $44.50, but met stiff resistance and fell back. Bellies closed lower on spillover weakness from cattle and hogs and pressure from yesterday's bearish frozen belly storage movement report.

Futures will continue to feel the pressure of the upcoming holiday as the traditional "turkey" takes center stage.

OPINION

Not Anger And Hatred, But Reason And Good Will

Dr. Michael DeBakey, Chancellor of Baylor College of Medicine in Houston and chairman of its department of surgery, recently addressed some concerns about the possible elimination of animals in research. Dr. DeBakey's article appeared in the Washington Post and later in the National Pork Producers Council News publication pork report.

Dr. DeBakey says, "As a patient advocate, both in and out of the operating room, I feel a responsibility to protect the rights of patients to reap the benefits of animal research."

"Had the animal legislation now pending in Congress been enacted when I began my career, it would have prevented me from developing a number of lifesaving procedures in my research laboratory."

"Instead of restoring thousands of patients to a normal life, my colleagues and I would have been helpless to offer many of our patients any real hope. Proposed legislation, known as the Mrazek bill, seeks to ban the use of pound animals for research supported by the National Institute of Health, the chief source of funds for biomedical research in this country."

"Even with today's technology I could not have developed the roller pump that made open-heart surgery possible, or the artificial artery that restored health to previously doomed patients with blood clots. Nor could we have attempted the first successful coronary artery bypass or implanted the first temporary mechanical heart."

"If scientists abandon cat and dog experiments for other models that are not as suitable or as well understood, many potential medical breakthroughs may be severely crippled or halted."

"Would animal-rights activists have objected to the first kidney, heart or liver transplant?"

"Would they forgo the protection humanity enjoys today against polio, diphtheria and whooping cough or the treatment for strep throat, ear infections and pneumonia, all products of animal research?"

"Would they have denied the 11 million diabetics the right to life that insulin has given them? Or the additional years made possible because of radiation and chemotherapy?"

"It was in monkeys that the deadly AIDS virus was isolated and that isolation is the initial step in the ultimate development of the vaccine."

"According to the American Humane Society, 7 million pet dogs are abandoned to pounds or shelters each year, 5 million of which are killed."

"Yet some would have you believe that killing animals in a pound is more virtuous than using them to help advance medical knowledge and benefit human and animal health."

"As a physician, I cannot conceive of telling parents that their sick child is doomed because we cannot use all the tools at our disposal."

"Surely those who object to animals in research laboratories must be equally distressed to see sick children hooked up to tubes. How will those parents feel about a society that legislates the rights of animals above those of their children?"

"Self-preservation is a primary instinct of all members of the animal kingdom, and patients with that instinct deserve our compassion as much as other species. The American public must decide."

"Shall we tell hundreds of thousands of victims of heart attacks, cancer, AIDS and other diseases that the rights of abandoned animals to die in a pound supercedes the patients' rights to relief from suffering and premature death?"

"In making that decision, let us not use anger and hatred, but reason and good will."

To Plan Ahead For Machinery Repairs

Most of the outside field work is finished for this year. I also know that every farm has machinery that needs repair and service. If you are planning to have this done at your machinery dealer, it would be wise to contact them in the near future so it's on their work schedule. I'm aware of the spring rush next March and April; and I know your local service people will appreciate the work during the fall and into the long winter days. It can also save time in case parts need to be ordered to complete the job. The objective is to be planning for this repair work now. Have it done so your machinery is ready to go early next spring.

To Control Winter Alfalfa Weeds

Winter weeds in our alfalfa fields are every bit as predictable as summer weeds are in corn and soybeans.

Colder weather is here and hay fields are dormant. We now have a choice to use different herbicides, depending largely on the kinds of weeds present that need to be knocked out. The most commonly found winter annuals at this time include chickweed and the four mustard weeds - shepherds purse, pepperweed, pennycress and yellow rocket. Also, expect to see seedlings of other weeds plus some old tough perennials, too. It pays to know your weeds present before selecting the herbicide.

Check the "Agronomy Gude" and READ THE LABEL on the container or package. There are directions and limitations to get the job done right.. in the next six weeks.

To Beware Of Anti-Freeze Poisoning In Dogs

An increasing number of people are doing their own automobile, truck and tractor maintenance. This may include draining and changing the anti-freeze. If you are among this group of home mechanics, a word of warning is advised.

Dogs find the sweet flavor of anti-freeze solutions very tasty. So beware! Ethylene glycol, a chief ingredient in anti-freeze, is extremely toxic to dogs, causing severe kidney damage. Never leave open containers of automotive coolant lying where a dog might find and drink from them. If your car, truck or tractor leaks coolant or the radiator overflows onto the driveway, clean the spill and dispose of the soaked towels properly, so your own or your neighbor's dog cannot inadvertently harm itself.

To Order Small Fruit Plants Early

This may strike you as premature, but this is a good time to order small fruit plants for next spring. Although you won't put them in the ground until April, you should be flipping through catalogs now. Ordering early assures you of a wide selection of the best varieties. Companies begin filling orders with their best stock... ifyou delay, you could be stuck with what's left over. Ordering early also means you'll get your strawberries or raspberries or whatever at the best time to plant.

So, dig out those catalogs now... get your order in... and be prepared for delicious fruit from your plantings.

FARM FORUM OUR READERS WRITE

Editor:

As an avid and regular reader of your weekly newspaper, I'm writing to solicit your help on a personal matter.

My family-based dairy business has, this year, reached its 50th anniversary since inception in Pennsylvania in 1937. The members of my family who initiated the business were the first farmers to introduce swiss cows to this county and to propagate their breeding and growth. Almost all of the relatives are now deceased, but I would like to commemorate their memory and mark their achievement with a suitable, publicly-displayed memorial.

Specifically, I would like very much to mount and display a mod-

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

KILLING THE DREAMER

November 15, 1987

Background Scripture: Genesis 35: 22b-26;37.

They planned to get rid of "the dreamer" in the vain assumption that they would thereby get rid of his disturbing dreams. People have been trying to do that from time immemorial and it has never really worked. Unlike the dreamer, the dreams are not flesh and blood. Incorporeal, unlimited by time and occupying no space, dreams cannot be interred in tombs or reduced to ashes.

Yet, humanity continues to kill its dreamers in order to bury their dreams. This is what was in the minds of the brothers of Joseph when they saw him at Dothan and said: "Here comes this dreamer. Come now, let us kill him. . ." (37:19,20).

THE FAVORITE

It's not hard to understand why they hated their brother. For one thing, it was clear that their father loved him most of all and favored him with a blatant partiality. The writer of Genesis freely admits, "Now Israel loved Joseph more than any other of his children, because he was the son of his old age; and made him a long robe with sleeves" (37:3). It is not hard to understand why they were jealous of him and "could not speak peaceably to him" (37:4).

To make things even worse, the young Joseph seems to have been something of a spoiled brat. The problem was not that he was a dreamer, but that his dreams clearly indicated that he regarded himself a superior to his brethren. How insensitive he was to flaunt these dreams before his already jealous and envious brothers! You may protest, "But these were only dreams, why should that upset them?" The answer was that the ancients never thought of these experiences as "just dreams." They took them as irreversible prophecies of what was yet to come. So, they decided, "Come now, let us kill him and throw him into one of the pits . . . and we shall see what will become of his dreams" (37:20).

THREATENING DREAMS

We're still using that kind of strategy today and with pretty much the same results. It is as if we had learned nothing in the last four thousand years. They thought to silence Jesus and his dreams of the kingdom. Missionaries, martyrs, clergy and lay alike, have been murdered so that their radical dreams might be destroyed with them. Martin Luther King, Jr. proclaimed, "I have a dream!" and because of that dream they gunned him down in Memphis. Still, his dream lives on; they couldn't kill it.

When will we ever learn: if they are God's dreams, you can only kill the dreamer, not the dream.

Lewis Landis & Groff Win In Lancaster 4-H Roundup

BY PAT PURCELL

MANHEIM — The list of champions and winners in the Lancaster County 4-H Woolies Round-up held Saturday, November 7, at the Manheim Farm Show Grounds, reads like pages from the past. The competition is tough and these 4-H'ers do not rest on their laurels because the person who came in second last may have the sheep to take first place this year.

Again, as she did last year and the year before that, Ellen Lewis swept the titles in the Hampshire breeding sheep competition. And for her grand finale, Lewis again captured the coveted supreme championship award over all five breeds shown. Judged by Lee Wagner from Easton, Pennsylvania, Lewis Lewis was again selected for exhibiting the sheep best owned and bred.

Ellen Lewis took both the supreme champion honors and the best bred and owned titles as with her exceptional Hampshire ewes at the Lancaster County 4-H Woolies Roundup.

Wendall Landis took the grand champion honors in the market lamb competition with his 129 lb. heavyweight champion market lamb. Landis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Landis of RD 7, Manheim. Carrie Groff took the reserve grand championship title with her 100 lb. lightweight champion. Groff is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Groff of RD 5, Elizabethtown.

Lewis Sweeps Championships In Breeding Sheep Competition

Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lewis of 1725 Clearsprings in Mount Joy showed an exceptional group of ewes putting her in the winners' spotlight several times Saturday. Lewis' ewe lambs captured both the champion and reserve champion rosettes in the Hampshire division and also took first and second place in the yearling ewe class. These wins added up to two big wins for the evening. Her champion ewe lamb was selected as the supreme champion ewe and her first place yearling ewe captured the best bred and owned honors for Lewis.

In the Shropshire division of the breeding sheep competition a big winner was Arlisa Snavely. Snavely took the champion and reserve champion titles with a pair of yearling ewes. Snavely is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Snavely of 2148 State Road, Lancaster.

Tracey Montes' ewe lamb took the champion title in the Oxford division in the breeding sheep competition. Gina Montes captured the reserve spot in that division with her yearling ewe. Tracey and Gina are the daughters of Marilyn Montes of 103 Skyview Lane in Lititz.

PARADISE TOBACCO SALES

Buyers are suggesting they need tobacco NOW! That is good, but they will also want your tobacco if you wait for our first large sale on:

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1987 AT 9:30 A.M.

We want your BEST tobacco first and we want to have a REAL BIG SALE. It's important to establish a high market price at our first sale; then, we will also get a good price for our lower quality tobacco. It is also important that the first tobacco shipped to the South is of the highest quality to stimulate further interest from other buyers.

Congratulations are in order for Mitch Ashby who placed as one of the top ten tobacco auctioneers in the country. He helped put PA tobacco on the map again!

We support an informative newsletter to be mailed to you this week. It suggests tips on striping & grading & marketing. Call Paradise for an issue today!

We feel that if we STICK TOGETHER and wait until the auction market opens you COULD create a situation similar to 2 years ago. THINK TWICE BEFORE SIGNING ANY CONTRACT! Thankfully both types of tobacco appear to be in good demand this year.

We will be receiving tobacco beginning on Friday, Dec. 4, right up until sale time!

BIG OPEN HOUSE ALL DAY FRIDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1987. COME FOR FREE LUNCH & BRING A LOAD OF TOBACCO ALONG.

National Grange Master Addresses Convention

SYRACUSE, N.Y.— "Federal payments to agricultural producers represent 30 percent of their annual net farm income," said Edward Andersen, Master of the National Grange. In his annual address following the opening of the Grange's national convention, here today, Andersen said that most farmers are still struggling to turn a profit particularly wheat, feed grain and soybean growers.

He said the '85 Farm Bill provides a limited marketing loan program for cotton and rice producers which has proven successful. He said it is time to provide a similar program for wheat, feed grain and soybean producers. "A marketing loan concept program provides the best opportunity to protect producer income, reduce the world oversupply and reduce the cost of the overall farm program in the long term," said Andersen.

"We cannot, in light of the tremendous federal deficit, expect Congress or the Administration to continue the present level of income protection for farmers," warned Andersen. He said farm programs are viewed as entitlement programs which will eventually be part of the federal budget reduction process. "Methods must be found to reduce the overall cost of the federal programs to support farm income," he said.

He also warned that million dollar payments to farmers are unacceptable to the general public and suggested a multi-tiered basis for payment on all program commodities. This would mean the first units of production would receive a greater per unit payment than each succeeding tier of units until the payment reaches zero for production units over and above a designated production level or until the total reaches the limitation payment cap.

Andersen reported that 54 rural banks, including 42 agriucltural banks, failed in the first six months of 1987. He noted that the Farm Credit System, which holds over one-third of the total farm debt is asking Congress for financial assistance. He called for legislative action to allow the Farm Credit System to respond rapidly to changing financial conditions and to diversify its loan risk outside of the agricultural industry.

Andersen also reviewed the Beef Promotion program created by the '85 Farm Bill to fund market research, new product use, nutrition research and promotion of beef products. He called the program "another example of farm commodity producers deciding to accept the responsibility of expanding the market for their product." He pointed out that a referendum of all cattle producers will be held next spring to determine if $1 per head of cattle sold in this country should continue to go toward the Beef Promotion program. Andersen called for local Granges with cattle, including dairy animals, in their area to get out a "yes" vote for the Beef Promotion program.

Individual tickets to the event are priced at $15. Half a table (eight places) may be reserved for $110, and a full table for 16 at $210.

The deadline for registration is Thursday, November 19. Reservations may be made by sending a check payable to The Lancaster Chamber to The Lancaster Chamber Ag Banquet, P.O. Box 1558, Lancaster, PA 17603. Please include your name, the name of your farm or business, your phone number and the number of tickets desired.

A highlight of the banquet each year is the recognition of new "Century Farm Families." To qualify as a Century Farm, the farm must be owned by the same family for 100 consecutive years to the date of application, and a family member must currently live on the farm. The farm must consist of at least 10 acres of the original holding or gross more than $1,000 annually from the sale of farm products.

The purpose of the Century Farms Program, initiated by the Department of Agriculture as a Bicentennial project, is to emphasize the contributions of the family farm to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Secretary Wolff assumed his present post in February. He holds a B.S. degree in dairy husbandry from The Pennsylvania State University.

Following his graduation in 1953, he returned to his home in Westmoreland County to own and operate the 410-acre family farm, and has spent the past 33 years in full-time farming and active participation in many state and local farm organizations.

His success as a farmer earned him the Pennsylvania Master Farmer Award in 1970, designation as a Kellogg Fellow in 1972, Outstanding County Farm Conservationist Award in 1975, Outstanding Grassland Award in 1976, and Distinguished Service to Agriculture Award in 1977.

.He has served as state director of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, a member of the board of trustees of The Pennsylvania State University, president of the Westmoreland County Farmers Association, president of the Westmoreland County Cooperative Extension Service, and chairman of the West Central Pennsylvania Federal Land Bank.

Although he retired from active farming last year, he retains membership in several statewide farm organizations.

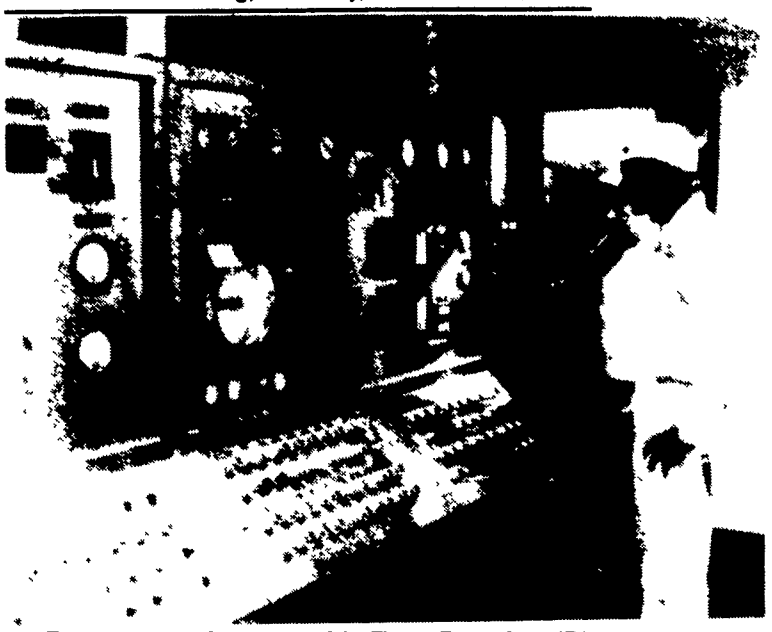
Squirting Milk



Dryer control room with Tom Douglas (R) and Bruce Bartholomew. These computer controls are the heart of the plant operation.

Powdered milk in bags ready for shipment.

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

MIDDLEBURY CENTER — Squirting milk into powder is big business at a small village called Middlebury Center located near Pennsylvania's Grand Canyon. This is the home of Dietrich's Milk Products who own two of the half dozen powdered milk plants in the state. The Middlebury Center plant, according to Thomas E. Decker, manager, is one of the largest powder operations in northeastern Pennsylvania. The remaining Dietrich plant is in Reading.

As accustomed as old Betsy is to squirting milk, even she would find it hard to believe that the essence of making powdered milk consists of squirting milk 102 feet into the air of a "super dome" where it mixes with 400 degree air and quickly becomes powder.

According to Decker, the process mentioned above occurs every day as part of the company's conversion of raw milk to powdered.

"The plant can convert 48,000 pounds of raw milk to 6,500 pounds of powder in about one hour," reports Decker.

Although the plant changes raw milk into powdered whole milk, powdered skim milk, or butter, Decker stated Dietrich's specializes in whole milk powder. "Our biggest market is whole milk powder," he observed.

Large candy companies who purchase whole milk powder to use in the manufacture of milk chocolate are Dietrich's biggest customers.

Situated on 22 acres, the Middlebury Center plant houses a new vertical dryer, a large computer system and has the capacity of holding 2.1 million pounds of milk in five silos.

Two major suppliers of raw milk to the plant are Atlantic Processing and the United Dairy Service Co-op in addition to area cooperatives.

The raw milk arrives at the plant in large tankers and is immediately tested for antibiotics, acidity, and bacteria. It must pass those tests before it goes any further, Decker

Mike Kipferl, lab analyst, removes milk powder from a moisturizer analyzer. Only 2.6 percent should remain in the powder. The test now takes seven seconds with the new equipment.

Milk Into Power

states.

Entering the plant, one is struck by the almost antiseptic cleanliness of the place. Gleaming stainless steel tanks and tubing are everywhere, technicians wear masks over beards in addition to hats, and the smell of disinfecting cleaners pervades the air as workers mop the floors.

Richard Niel stands by the giant dryer. Milk is mixed with hot air in the 103-foot-high machine. Then the milk falls back down as powder and is caught in bags at the bottom.

"It takes 10 to 15 minutes to unload 50,000 pounds of milk," Decker says, referring to the large tankers. During their busiest season from March to May they may process as many as 30 tankers daily.

After passing the above tests, milk to be used for skim milk powder is sent to a separator which separates the cream to be used as butter. Milk to be converted to whole milk powder is stored in one of five silos ranging in size from 25,000 to 60,000 gallons. This milk is tested to determine fat level. "There are different fat levels for different candy companies," notes Decker.

Next, the milk is transported to large evaporators where the volume is reduced by cooking. The condensed milk is then shot through high pressure pumps up 102 feet through a funnel apparatus where it mixes with 400 degree hot air in a super dome and becomes powder. When the powder falls back down it is caught in 660 10-foot long cloth bags.

An apparatus called the Azone system pulls the powder from the bags and loads it into large tote bins capable of holding 2700 pounds each. To insure the powder contains no more than 2.6 percent moisture, a sample of each batch is sent to the plant's laboratory. If it passes this seven second test, the milk is bagged for shipment to customers.

Cleaning the tankers and huge silos, according to Decker, is accomplished by using a Clean In Place (CPI) system. The CPI system is composed of huge tanks of cleaning solution kept at a temperature of 138 degrees which is sprayed into the emptied tankers and silos.

Future plans for the Middlebury Center plant include a new warehouse and a two story building which among other things will house new laboratory and office facilities.

The Middlebury Center plant was purchased by William Dietrich, president of Dietrich's Milk Products, in May, 1986. Prior to that the plant was owned by Northeast Dairy Cooperative Federation, Inc. (NEDCO) until their bankruptcy in 1985.

Eastern President

Laverne also is a director of the National Milk Producers Federation that sees more advertising as an answer to surpluses, not another cut in price supports.

NMPF recommends a 10 cent increase in advertising assessments.

That's certainly better than a 50 cent cut in dairy supports, McCarty agrees, but suggesting any increase in assessments doesn't come to easy to McCarty.

Laverne learned the economics of farming the hard way in the 1950s. A Korean War veteran he earned $25 a week as a hired man, and he was married to boot.

"We had a house and milk," his wife Dora smiles, thinking back to the early 1950s. "Later the owner, Carl Molyneux, gave us a chance to buy into the farm."

"We were luck," Laverne agrees. "Farm prices were still low and we were able to swing it."

By 1957, they had bought the farm lock, stock and 28-stanchion barn.

Laverne and Dora have four children. Two daughters live in Reading. Celia is married and an attorney. Darcy is a computer operator with Reading Steel. Two sons, Tracy and Brian, are home.

Today, McCarty and the boys milk 85 registered Holsteins and ship 1,200,000 pounds a year. Tracy is a partner. Brian is thinking that way.

Advertising assessment now costs the partners $1800 annually. Another 10 cents would add $1200.

Laverne is a believer.

Any plans for more cows?

"We're standing pat. But we might add sheep," the older McCarty suggests. Tracy has 150 crossbred Columbia ewes on a second farm which he owns, and he's shooting for 200.

The last big herd expansion was in 1979 when Laverne and Tracy hired a contractor to add a 110-foot shed to the barn for two more rows of comfort stalls.

"A month after the addition was built we had a four foot snow. The roof collapsed. Fortunately most of the 40 cows in the addition were lying down. Only one was lost. If we'd been milking we'd been killed. It was that sudden."

The new roof went up twice as strong.

Big snows are no surprise for this northern Pennsylvania county with its picturesque mountains and forests. What is a surprise is the 300 acres of bottomland the McCartys own and rent along the Loyalsock Creek.

One 100 acre field right below the barn is a mile long and as flat as a pancake.

"Corn yields of 125 to 150 bushels aren't unusual," son Tracy says.

"I placed third in the state one year," Laverne recalls. He checks the plaque. "157 bushels in 1963."

The season is longer than one might suspect for a farm located a 38 miles uphill climb from Williamsport.

"We grow 90-day corn for silage, and 110-day for picking," Tracy reports.

"We have surplus problem up here -- deer," Laverne reports. "This year they completely destroyed 39 acres of corn."

The McCartys fill a 16 by 60 foot upright with high moisture ear corn. Corn silage goes in a 14 by 32 by 100 foot trench.

Alfalfa does just about as well as corn. First cutting fills a 18 by 60 foot silo. Then the farm team bales approximately three tons an acre in later cuttings.

"I wouldn't build another silo if I was starting now," Laverne comments.

Pasture is important here, too. Corn stubble is seeded to rye and give cows a two week jump on pasture each spring. Sudan sorghum seedings take care of summer slump.

But back to advertising and promotion.

"I'm encouraged by our increased dairy sales. With a bigger effort they should keep going up," he says looking out at his herd.

Then he adds -- "It's more of an answer than depending on government for help."

Laverne McCarty checks out Saranac alfalfa grown along the Loyalsock Creek in Sullivan County. He once was hired man on farm he now owns and operates with his wife and two boys.

income. Rural development has become a buzz word as an excuse to find some way of getting income out to rural areas, never mind fair prices.

"This willingness to impose failed policies on farmers and disrespect for farmers is just as corrupt as the disrespect for Americans demonstrated by participants in the Iran-gate scandal," Carpenter said.

Farmers Union members are known for fighting for farmers' rights, and should continue that tradition, he said. He congratulated the Pennsylvania organization for its leadership in pressing for borrowers' rights and loan mediation portions of the Farm Credit System reform bill moving through Congress.

"You deserve a warm, hearty pat on the back for your Farmland Preservation Act passed in the last weeks. You've sent a signal to everyone that Pennsylvanians want local farmers on the land, and don't want it traded on Wall Street," Carpenter said.

"There is a great opportunity, not only for positive change, but for Farmers Union to be the leaders in that change," he said.

NINE RECEIVE SPECIAL AWARDS

Nine Pennsylvanians were singled out for special honors.

The family farm organization's first elected president, Jim Brown of Jamestown, was honored with a special ring authorized by the National Farmers Union (NFU) board of directors. Brown, a longtime farm activist, led the state organization through a period of growth culminating in its 1982 charter as a division of the NFU. Brown previously served as president of the Farmers Union Milk Producers Association (FUMPA) and member of the NFU board of directors. He currently serves as an appointee of the Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture on several statewide committees.

Congressman Joe Kolter was named PFU's Legislator of the Year at the awards ceremony. Kolter, a co-sponsor of the Harkin-Gephardt Family Farm Act, received a 92 percent voting rating from the NFU for his support in the 99th Congress. His support of family farmers has been unwaivering, according to PFU officials.

Special Service Awards were given to former state secretary of agriculture Jim McHale, Dillsburg, one of PFU's first organizers; Jack Rynd, Cochranton, president of FUMPA, a member of NFU Dairy Task Force, and an instrumental voice in the organization's dairy policy; Norm Hutchinson, Stoneboro, general manager of FUMPA for his important role in forming dairy policy; and Orville Carver, Mechanicsboro, Pennsylvania Green Thumb executive director for his longtime support of the organization.

GOLDEN TRIANGLE AWARDS

Three Golden Triangle Awards are traditionally given by the organization.

The Golden Triangle Legislative Award is presented to the PFU member who has made significant strides in legislative work during the previous year. Gerald Seyler, Jersey Shore, is the 1987 recipient. Seyler has twice represented PFU over the past year in meetings in Washington, D.C., including participation in a conference of grass roots organizations. Seyler is particularly active in grain and beef policy.

The Golden Triangle Cooperation Award was given to Shirley Mitcheltree, New Castle. Recipients of this award are chosen for their pioneering spirit, unselfish dedication, and contribution to their Farmers Union peers. Mitcheltree has hosted influential members of Congress on her farm, serves as a director of FUMPA and as president of Butler-Lawrence County Farmers Union.

Terry Pattison, Union City, received the Golden Triangle Education Award for sharing valuable knowledge with Farmers Union youth and members. Pattison has appeared in videos and news reports about rural issues and has gained positive publicity for the Harkin-Gephardt Family Farm Act.

INNOVATIVE FARM RECORD KEEPING SYSTEM ANNOUNCED

An innovative data management and tax accounting service was unveiled to Farmers Union members statewide. The new service satisfies IRS record keeping requirements. Participating farmers record financial information on income and expense forms provided by PFU in cooperation with Data Management Associates, Inc. The forms are returned to Data Management Associates each month, and in return farmers receive prompt financial reports highlighting their business operation. At the end of the third quarter, a "snapshot" of the financial posture is provided, helping producers make important fourth quarter financial decisions that can save money.

This record keeping service, is available only to Farmers Union members for a $31 monthly fee, which covers records for up to 75 cows and heifers. Additional animals may be covered for an additional consideration.

Optional services include monthly income tax reports.

Nittany Classic Has $4,100 Top; $1,588 Average

BY JODI RICHARD
Center Co. Correspondent

UNIVERSITY PARK — Approximately 300 farmers and 4-H'ers from Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland trekked to Penn State's Ag Arena for the Fourth Annual Nittany Lion Fall Classic Holstein Sale, Nov. 7. The fourth annual auction was sponsored by the Penn State Dairy Science Club and the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

"The major purpose of the sale is to give students hands on experience in selecting, merchandising and preparing quality dairy cattle for an auction," said Dr. Larry Muller, professor of dairy science and the club's advisor.

The Dairy Science Club selected the cattle, organized and publicized the sale with little help from the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

"The Pennsylvania Holstein Association stayed in the background and let the students run the whole thing," said William Nichol, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association. "We kept an eye on things to make sure everything was running smoothly."

The 1987 Nittany Lion Fall Classic has been in the planning stage since last year. Rusty Russell, overall sale chairman, and Mark Price, assistant chairman, were elected after last year's sale. Russell and Price's roles involved choosing the chairmen and committee members, the sale date and sale order. They also kept the communication lines between the committee members and the Pennsylvania Holstein people open.

The Dairy Science Club selection committee travelled around the state and Maryland to select and consign the auction animals. Each committee member focused on good dairy characteristics such as a strong pedigree, compact udder, straight back and total milk production.

"I believe there is a good selection of high-quality young cows, heifers and calves," said second year agriculture student and selection chairperson Yvette Francisco. "The committee put in a lot of hours selecting this sale herd."

Selecting the dairy cows, however was just the beginning; preparing them for the sale was also an involved process. The cows arrived four days before the sale to stabilize.

"Cows are creatures of habit," said Walt Moore, animal preparation chairman and agricultural science major, "after being hauled they tend to go off their feed and their milk production drops." He was also in charge of feeding, bedding and milking the cows. As proof of their dedication to the sale's success, Moore and other Dairy Science Club members slept in the barn to keep an eye on the cows.

$3000 Shelea LH Chairman Jody and friends.

"This year's sale was a success, the response from the bidders and buyers was a direct reflection of the students' hard work," said Nichol, "their professionalism has shown through."

Other members of the Dairy Science Club who helped with the sale were: Jennie Hess, advertising and publicity; Carol Dreisbach, arena preparation and Crystal Pheasant, reception. Pennsylvania Holstein Association people who helped were Jeffrey Harding, director of sales and Kenneth Raney, director of membership service.

And a success it was. After being selected, stabilized, and well-groomed, the 54 registered Holsteins were ready to meet the buyers. Mike Weimer and Harry Bachman, the auctioneers, helped the club average a sale price of $1,588 per cow. Doug Hayward of Reading, paid the top price of $4,100 for a two-year old owned by the Pennsylvania Holstein Association. David Mattocks, Tunkannock, and William Hostetter, Oxford, bought the second and third cows for $3,000 and $2,700 respectively.

"This year's average price was higher than last year's," said Dr. Muller.

"I believe Penn State's Dairy Science Club will get national recognition after this sale," Nichol added. "And I also think they'll have an easier time consigning animals next year."

GENERAL NOTES

Dr. Larry Muller: Dairy Science Club Advisor: This is the fourth year for the auction and it is sponsored by the Penn State Dairy Science Club and the Pennsylvania Holstein Association. The major purpose of the sale is to give students hands on experience in merchandising, looking at and selecting quality livestock, prepare the animals for the auction, salesmanship, communication with dairy farmers across the state. This is the chance for the entire club to work together. There are approximately 70 members in the club. The club members will be taking bids and leading the animals at the sale, but have hired professional auctioneers.

Yvette Francisco: Selection Chairman: All of the members went around the state and into Maryland to select and consign the animals for the sale. When they were looking at the animals, bloodlines meant a lot, but obviously, the most important fact was milk production. The animals were selected over the past three months. When selecting the animals, they look at solid pedigrees, total milk, protein and fat production, compact udder, straight back can and should begin by selecting which cows should be bred and which cows should not be bred.

So there is no quick and easy formula. There are no magic numbers. Much of the decision to cull depends upon the quality of the stock available to replace it. To continously improve the production and to achieve uniformity throughout the herd the operator must have consistently better replacements.

The future of the dairy herd and consequently the dairy farm itself depends upon the quality of the herd replacements. The goal is quite obvious. However, the right program to acheive this goal is not so obvious. And all this must be done while keeping costs down.

There are many factors in a dairy herd replacement program to be considered. And each factor must be looked at for economy, value to the program and suitablity to the individual farming operation. As in any farming operation, what works for one farmer may not work for another. And also, the only way a herd replacement program, or any program will work is that it must be followed. Although well-intentioned, a program will fail if it is one that asks more than the operator can give in time, money, and labor.

PRIORITIES

"Your best genetic material are the just born calves and they deserve the same best management practices and attention because they will be your best cows in the future," said Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent.

"One problem is that the farmer may be inclined to pay attention to the critters which are paying the bills and may tend to overlook the need and value for proper care of the young livestock and may short change them on management," adds Shirk.

That concept is not news to any dairy farmer. However, although farm production has increased over the past decade the work force has not. Already stretched to capacity any labor intensive project must be scrutinized for its positive values.

"Considering the technical complexities, the work, the size of farms, the labor force has not doubled. When is enough work enough?", asks Shirk.

The program for raising young stock for herd replacement, must be one that blends well with the rest of the production concerns and neither deters good management practices nor consumes the time and energy of the owner.

What Works For Some

For as many different farms, there are as many different heifer raising programs. And for all topics ideas and opinions are different. What works for some, may not work for others. And while some programs may be very successful, the operator finds it difficult to pinpoint why. Throughout the series of articles the herd replacement programs of several dairy farmers will be discussed. Each farm is different and each program is tailored to meet the individual needs and limitations of that farm.

Peter Witmer, and his parents Raymond and Louise Witmer, operate the Penn-Del Farms, of Willow Street, and raise all their own replacements for their 60-plus head milking herd of Guernseys. Calves and heifers number nearly 50 head.

For the most part Peter is satisfied with his herd replacement program, but there are some parts he would like to change. However, he is quick to point out that the Witmer family has been raising their own replacements basically the same way for 17 years and it works.

Helene Dreisbach of Hamburg in Berks County, operates the dairy portion of Long Meadow Farms, with approximately 100 milking Jerseys, and raise all their own replacements. Dr. Robert Dreisbach, DVM, handles the nutritional needs of the dairy herd and work is shared by all including Patty, the Dreisbach's daughter and her husband Todd. Todd recently added 16 milking Jerseys of his own from his North Carolina herd to the Dreisbach herd. In the past 15 years the Dreisbach's have experimented with nearly every facet of herd replacement. They now have a program with which they are receiving good results.

Kenneth Umble and his wife Marilyn, operate the Glen Valley Farm, in Atglen, Chester County. Glen Valley Farm is home to 110 head of Holsteins with a 60 head milking herd. They raise most of their own replacements and do some merchandising.

Mt. Ararat Farms near Port Deposit, Maryland, raises all their own replacements for the 200-head Guernsey farm. The young livestock are nearly half of that number and Nevin Kratz, Herd Manager, says they experience few problems in the heifer replacement program. Basically in the fifteen years he has been at Mt. Ararat, little has been changed and he hopes the success continues.

Components of a herd replacement program to be discussed:
—health
—nutrition
—isolation
—immunization
—ventilation
—management
—labor
—housing

Calf Mortality

The major concern for calves is survival. Environment, sanitation, isolation, nutrition, immunization, stress are all key factors in keeping the calf mortality rate low. Perhaps no part of the heifer raising program is as labor intensive as the care demanded by heifer calves.

Newborn Dangers

Sanitation and isolation can often be the determining factors in the survival of the newborn. At birth the calf is powerless against bacteria and the risk of infection is extremely high. For that reason the calving area is very important. It is critical that the area be well-bedded and absolutely dry. Moisture breeds germs. This is where the newborn can easily come into contact with harmful germs before the calf has had the opportunity to acquire any immunity.

Often the calf is taken from the dam immediately, even before the dam has had the chance to lick the newborn. Or the calf may be left with its mother for two days. However, in allowing the calf to remain with the dam the operator runs the a greater risk of passing diseases along to the calf by maternal association.

Colostrum: The First Hours

Colostrum, the mother's first milk is extremely rich in antibodies. In the first few hours of life, the newborn's digestive system is able to absorb a high rate of the nutrients. After that first half-day, the rate of absorbtion drops off quite rapidly, according to Shirk.

"It is crucial to get that colostrum into the digestive system before any germs have the opportunity to get the head start," warns Shirk.

Colostrum may be fed to the calves for three days or as long as two weeks, although the dam's colostrum noticeably dilutes within five days. Soured colostrum can be fed. It came into use within the past decade, but it can become bothersome to the farmer because it can be a sloppy and odorous operation. Frozen colostrum has the benefit of convenience. However, that is not the only benefit, according to Shirk.

Colostrum is rich in antibodies, but the quality and quantity of the antibodies depends on the age of the dam.

"If the dam is young, a first calf heifer, and has not been exposed to stress conditions, if it has not had the need to fight off disease, then its system has not been challenged to produce immunities to certain organisms. This would be the difference between colostrum from a mature cow which has been exposed to certain bacteria and to the colostrum from a first calf heifer. An older cow has the quality colostrum and can pass different immunities to the calf," said Shirk.

Twin Valley FFA Ranked #1 In State

The Twin Valley Future Farmers of America chapter has been ranked first out of 189 chapters in Pennsylvania. This ranking was determined by the chapter accomplishments through BOAC (Building Our American Communities), achievements won by members of Twin Valley FFA through various contests, and total participation of the members in the chapter activities.

Twin Valley FFA has 94 members. The Chapter officers for 86-87 were: Kevin Stoltzfus- president, Tom Morgan and Rick Hicks- vice presidents, Bob Bell- treasurer, Bob Amey- chaplain, Sue Burkhart- reporter, Ann Kline- sentinel, and Lauren Schwartz- secretary. Some of the outstanding achievements and accomplishments for the past year include:

The Twin Valley FFA chapter participated in many community service projects like working with Hay Creek Fall Festival and Apple Festival, putting on Food for America Programs for third graders, and hosting a dairy farm tour for all third graders. We also arranged petting zoos at Reading Rehabilitation Hospital, Tel Hai and, The Honey Brook Early Learning Center. The forestry students planted over 8000 seedlings for the Pennsylvania Game Commission on local gamelands and constructed wood duck nest boxes. As BOAC projects students assembled playground equipment for Twin Valley Elementary Center, and worked on landscape planting at Tel Hai. Students also had a Field corn test plot with local farmers and seedcorn dealers.

In June of 1986 Beth Morgan received the DeKalb Pfizer prize awarded to the graduating agricultural senior attaining the highest degree of proficiency in scholarship, leadership, and supervised agricultural project program. Beth Morgan was also selected to attend the American Institute of Cooperation (AIC) in Tennessee. Also in June of 1986 Twin Valley FFA attended the Pennsylvania State Activities Week and participated in state FFA contests, Beth Morgan placed third in the state forestry contest, Mike Stoltzfus placed eighth in the livestock judging contest, Sue Burkhart placed third in the interview contest, and Kim Brossman gained tenth place in the pleasure horse judging contest. All of these contestants received gold medals for their accomplishments. Also during the summer of 1986 Ann Kline, Kevin Stoltzfus and Rick Hicks attended the National FFA Washington Leadership Conference held in Washington D.C.

Mike Stoltzfus received Grand Champion with his pig at the Berks County FFA Swine Show. At the South Eastern Pennsylvania FFA Dairy Show, Glenn Stoltzfus was selected the breeder exhibitor.

In September, Kevin Stoltzfus took a third in the Pennsylvania Guernsey Intermediate Yearling Heifer Class. Freshman Scott Ritchie won the Berks County Greenhand Contest at the Berks FFA Leadership Conference. Twin Valley FFA members attended the 1986 Eastern Pennsylvania Leadcership Conference at PEEC to learn more about leadership. Later in the fall, eight members traveled to Kansas City to represent Twin Valley's FFA in the 59th National Convention and accept a silver medal in both BOAC and National Chapter rating.

At the 1987 State Farm Show, Dwight Stoltzfus won a second with a four-year old dry cow in the open division and his brother captured third in the five or over dry cow class. Other members showed breeding ewes and market lambs, as well as swine. The chapter had four Keystone Farmers: Kevin Stoltzfus, Ann Kline, John Foreman, and John Keenan. Many members did well in the State project book contest, some of the top placings were: first place market lambs- Robert Amey, and Sue Burkhart was a district production credit winner.

In March the chapter prepared a breakfast for the faculty and other people in the community who are involved in agriculture or the FFA. The chapter also displayed farm animals in the lobby at Twin Valley High School during National FFA week.

At the Berks County FFA Public speaking contest Tom Morgan placed first with his conservation speech and Cathy Matthews, who went on to win at the state contest, captured second in the Creed speaking contest.

The Chapter awards banquet was held on April 9th at Twin Valley High School. Kevin Stoltzfus was the Chapter Star Farmer, Ann Kline was the Chapter Star Agribusiness person, and Mary Beth Hassler was chosen as the Chapter Star Greenhand. Both Kevin and Ann won these degrees on the county level also.

Chapter members attended the Blue Mountain Cooperative Institute and Sue Burkhart, Dwight Stoltzfus, Ann Kline, Butch Harrison, and Rich Slonaker were selected to attend the summer Pennsylvania Cooperative Institute at Juniata College. In spring contests Bob Carlson led a strong forestry team which won the top five placings, Jeff Ortlip placed first in the poultry judging contest, Rick Hicks was second in the farm management contest, Duane Stoltzfus placed first in the land judging contest.

These were just a few of the many accomplishments of the Twin Valley FFA chapter during 1986-87. The members of the chapters have competed in many other contests and have spent much time on FFA projects, fund raisers, and contests.

The chapter will receive a silver emblem in the national chapter rating contest at the national FFA convention in Kansas City in November. Five Pennsyvlania chapters will receive national chapter recognition. There are 186 FFA chapters in Pennsylvania and about 8000 in the United States. Twin Valley will also receive a silver awards in the national BOAC competition.

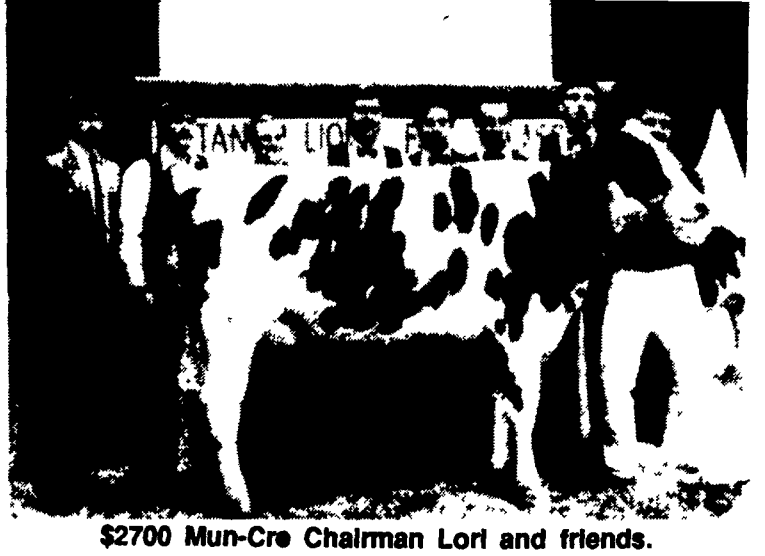
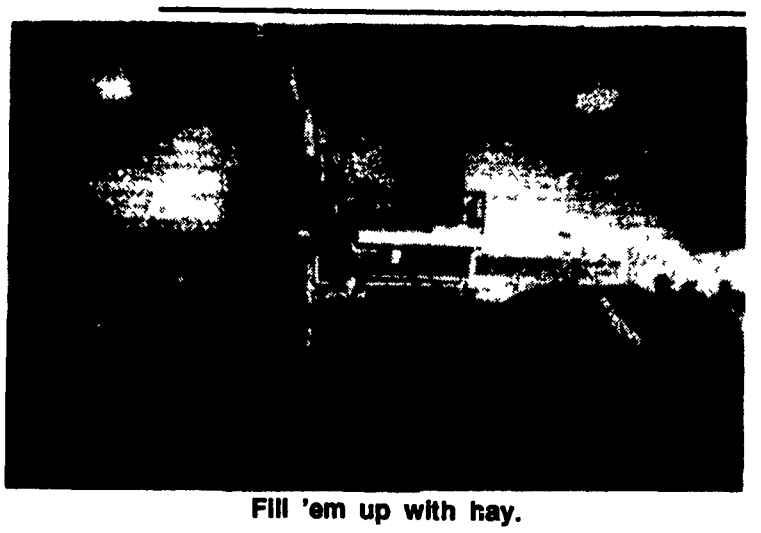
and general good dairy character. They also look for popular sires. There is a solid selection of good young cows, heifers and calves. To get the farmers to consign their animals, the club sends a letter to the past consignors and then backs the letter up with a phone call. Then, they go to the farms to look at the animals. To prepare the cows for the sale, they were washed and heads, tails, udders, legs (to show bone) and shoulders were clipped. All to make the cow look as good as possible. The selection also looked at the cows themselves, they didn't want to bring back any dogs. Before the sale, they milked at 11:00 p.m. so they had full udders at the sale.

Muller: The kids had a lot to learn when they went looking for the animals. Sometimes they came back from a long day of looking with success, but other times, they didn't find anything. The average price is higher than last year's. The sale was definitely success.

Jennie Hess: Advertising and Publicity: Their advertising budget was $1,200, and they advertised in Lancaster Farming, Holstein Profiles, Holstein World, Farmshine.



$2700 Mun-Cre Chairman Lori and friends.



Fill 'em up with hay.

Walt Moore: Animal Preparation: Most of the cows were brought in four days in advance so they can be washed, clipped and stabilized. Cows are creatures of habit, and from travelling, they tend to go off their feed and their milk production will drop. Also in charge of feeding, bedding, keeping the animals and facilities clean and milking. All of the animals have been checked by a vet to make sure they are healthy. Slept in the barn since Tuesday night to keep an eye on the animals.

Rusty Russell: Overall Chairman: Have to keep everything together. Make sure everyone is communicating, like all the committee members, and the DSC and PA Hols. Assoc. helped out a lot with selection of the cows. Also in charge of the beginning decisions, date of the actual sale, electing the committee members and chairman. After the last sale, he was elected, he watched who was interested in each individual factor of the sale, and who was better qualified, then selected them for the job. He decided the sale order, put the sale catalogue together (getting the photos rounded up and the pedigrees together).

William C. Nichol: Executive Secretary of the PA Holstein Association: PA Hols. works with the DSC to give the students actual experience in conducting a cattle auction. They go through simulations in class, but this is the real thing. There is a financial interest also. The actual operation of the sale makes the club responsible for serving the consignor. The PA Hols. Assoc. stays in the background and lets the students run the whole thing, they make sure everything is okay. The student's professionalism is showing through since the first time they put on the sale. After this sale, they will get national recognition as a club. The response from this year's bidders and buyers is a direct reflection of the students and I think they will have an easier time consigning next year. I felt it was a good sale today that was very well received. I'm also here looking at the individuals who excell in extra-curricular activities because we're always looking for top individuals as perspective employers. I forsee more activities going on in this facility because the Ag Arena is pretty well-known now. Bigger activities will be held here in the months to come because of its location, it will be easy to pull the entire state together here. The success of this auction built confidence in the minds of the young people, which is very important.

Overall comments: Average price per cow was $1,588 and approximately 300 people attended. Possible reason for the sale so good is because the dairy industry is looking so positive.

From 1972 to 1982, Malinzak served as Chairman of the Penn's Corner RC&D area which encompasses nine southwestern counties. He currently works as a licensed realtor with Century 21 Breneman Associates, 4400 Linglestown Road, Harrisburg.

USDA Proposes Increase In Indemnities

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture today proposed to increase compensation paid to owners for certain bison and cattle exposed to brucellosis and destroyed as a result of a herd depopulation.

In Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, the proposed plan would increase the indemnity up to $250 for exposed bison and for nonregistered cattle other than dairy cattle. In all other states, the indemnity would be up to $150.

"The changes would reduce a herd owner's financial losses incurred because of herd depopulation and to encourage owners to depopulate before the disease spreads within the herd and to other herds," said Bert W. Hawkins, administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

Brucellosis, sometimes called Bang's disease, is an infectious bacterial disease that causes reduced fertility and lower milk yields in cattle. The disease can be transmitted to humans.

Bank Named In Agri Finance Magazine

Lebanon Valley National Bank was named as the thirty-ninth largest agricultural lender in the United States according to the October 1987 issue of Agri Finance. Michael H. Firestine, Vice President and Manager of LVNB's Agricultural Group, stated that Agri Finance magazine, a nationally distributed magazine for agriculture business managers, presents an annual list of the 100 largest commercial agricultural banks in the United States, ranked by local farm loans. This ranking was compiled from information on Call and Income Reports submitted to the Comptroller of Currency for the quarter ending March 31, 1987. LVNB had total farm loans outstanding of $48,786,000 as of March 31, 1987.

Firestine indicated that there were only three banks in Pennsylvania that were rated in the 100 largest agricultural banks in the United States. In 1986 Lebanon Valley National Bank ranked as the sixty-second largest agricultural lender and in 1985 was not included in the top 100. Firestine attributed LVNB's growth in agricultural lending to an aggressive business development program and to the fact that there are so many well managed family farms in LVNB's marketing area encompassing Lebanon, Lancaster, Berks, and Dauphin Counties.

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative Progressing Smoothly

SOUTHAMPTON — Atlantic Dairy Cooperative is "off and running and is rolling on the right track," according to the cooperative's general manager, Dr. Paul E. Hand.

Speaking at a series of member meetings held this fall, Hand said that Atlantic is meeting all of the expectations set forth at the time of the cooperative's merger. Atlantic was formed earlier this year when Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative merged with Lehigh Valley Farmers.

Financially, Atlantic is a sound organization, Hand said. In the first six months of operation, the cooperative's equity reached more than $16 million. Hand estimates that equity will rise to $20 million over the next few years.

Total net savings for the fiscal year, Aug. 1, 1986 to July 31, 1987, was more than $3.9 million. Approximately $1.7 million of this amount was earned prior to the merger; the remaining $2.3 million was generated during the first six months of Atlantic's operation.

Atlantic's financial success translates back to you," Hand told the members. "Based on the year's total milk production, the net savings relates to earnings of 13 cents per hundredweight."

Atlantic members produced 1.7 billion pounds of milk during its initial six months. Hand said that yearly milk production is projected at 3.5 billion pounds, which places Atlantic among the nation's top 10 cooperatives.

Overall, the merger is resulting in substantial operating savings, Hand said. For example, the cooperative is currently realigning its milk hauling routes. This will eliminate overlap of routes and the miles traveled by the cooperative's haulers, he said.

"Atlantic has made great progress," Hand said, "and we are confident that we can continue to maintain our financial stability."

A full report on cooperative business will be given at the annual meeting, Nov. 19-20, at the Host Farm Resort, Lancaster, Pa. Here, cooperative managers and staff will address the theme, "Answering Dairy's Challenges."

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative represents 4,100 dairy farm families in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

Weiler Celebrates 25-Year Anniversary With Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK, PA — Jim Weiler has spent a busy 25 years with Penn State's Cooperative Extension Service in Bedford County. Weiler, who is the acting county extension director, spent 21 years as Bedford County's extension agent. He has worked closely with the Dairy Herd Improvement, County Holstein Breeders and Beef Breeders organizations.

Weiler also has been actively involved with the dairy, beef, swine, horse and pony 4-H projects. He was responsible for establishing a variety of 4-H community clubs that involved many different projects.

Crop production was also a part of Weiler's work. In the early 1970s, Bedford and Blair counties worked together on several tillage systems; no till, minimum till and extensive till. Today's no till corn started and progressed in Bedford County. By the end of the 1970's, no till forage systems, the Five Acre Corn Club and the Alfalfa Growers Club existed in Bedford County. In 1981 the Bedford Crop Management Association, the second in the state, evolved due to Weiler's influences.

Weiler was named extension farm and family resource management agent of the Central Region in the fall of 1983, stationed in Altoona. Dairy farm analysis, estate planning and farm transfer arrangements became a part of Weilers responsibilities. In September 1986, Weiler was named county extension director of Bedford County. Weiler moved back to Bedford where 23 years ago, he began as county agent.

"I enjoy working with and helping people, whether they are 4-H'ers or farmers," Weiler commented.

Pitt-Penn State Winner To Take Home Milk Can Trophy

Winner of the Pitt-Penn State Football game November 14 will take home more than bruises and bragging rights. The victor also takes possession of a milk can trophy donated by Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program for the dairymen in the Keystone State.

The trophy is a brass and copper replica of the 40-quart milk can that was long standard in the state's $1.4 billion dairy industry, reports PDPP board chairman Jim Harteis, Ebensburg.

Today, he said, the milk can is a museum piece. Most dairymen protect milk quality with stainless steel tanks and high tech refrigeration.

Penn State holds the trophy after a convincing 34-14 win in the 1986 Dairy Gridiron Classic at State College that gave the Lions Pennsylvania's mythical college title. The 1987 clash will be held at Pittsburgh.

A second "milk can" goes each year to the winner of Penn State-Temple game. The Nittany Lions retained possession for 12 more months with a 27-13 win October 3 at Beaver Stadium.

The teams aren't the only winners at the two Dairy Gridiron Classics, according to the Cambria county dairyman. The victorious universities also receive $1,000 academic scholarships from the dairy promotion group.

"We look on the milk can trophy as the start of a football tradition between these fine state schools," Harteis commented.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program is financed by contributions from over 4,000 state dairymen. No tax money is used to support PDPP advertising, promotion and research.

It's a football tradition in the making. "Milk can" trophy now held by Penn State Coach Joe Paterno, left, and the Nittany Lions, will be up for grabs at the Pitt-Penn State football game November 14. Don Duncan, at right, a Robesonia dairyman, is a board member of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program that donated the trophy. The winning school also will receive a $1,000 academic scholarship.

USDA's Conservation Reserve Program Saves Soil

The USDA's Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) is reducing erosion nationally by keeping approximately 467 million tons of soil annually on the 23 million acres contracted for the program, according to Wilson Scaling, Chief of USDA's Soil Conservation Service (SCS).

"This represents about 16 percent of all the soil erosion that occurs each year on the nation's cultivated cropland," Scaling said. "When the program goal of retiring 40-45 million acres is met by 1990, CRP should reduce erosion on all cultivated land by 25 percent.

Almost 1300 Pennsylvania farmers have enrolled 47,000 acres in the conservation reserve program. SCS State Conservationist James Olson reports that soil losses have been reduced by 848,260 tons per year. "Participation has varied by county but overall has not been up to levels expected," added Olson.

Texas and Kansas lead the nation in participation with 2.7 and 2.0 million acres enrolled respectfully.

Land enrolled in the program is ineligible for cropping and must be planted with permanent vegetative cover or to trees.

According to USDA figures, the average erosion rate on the 22.9 million acres contracted in the program will drop from 22 to 1.7 tons per acre.

"We're halfway toward our goal a year and a half after the program was authorized," said Scaling. "The program is working well. It is helping to battle erosion in areas where help is needed."

CRP is administered by the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service (ASCS) with assistance from other USDA agencies such as SCS and the Forest Service.

Participants receive cost-share payments of up to 50 percent of the cost of establishing trees or grass on the acreage placed in the program. The average cost-share paid by USDA is $37.51 per acre. These monies partially reimburse the farmer for the one time cost of establishing the required cover and soil conservation practices on their cropland.

Farmers also receive annual rental payments for retiring their land through ten year contracts. The average rental paid to farmers who participated in the first five signup is $48.40 per acre.

According to Olson, the next conservation reserve program signup period will be from February 1 to 9, 1988. Additional information on CRP can be obtained by contacting ASCS or SCS offices in your county.

Record Price For Adams Co. Beef Club

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

YORK SPRINGS — A new record selling price was recorded at the 3rd Annual Adams County Beef Club Show and Sale held at Wenger's Saddlery Monday, November 2nd. Weikerts Meat Market, Gettysburg, paid $2.50 a pound for the 1145 pound Black Angus Grand Champion exhibited by Tim Spangler also from Gettysburg. This price bested last year's champion price by 50 percent. Contending bidders on the Grand Champion were Spangler's Restaurant and York Springs Auto Auction.

For the 19-year-old Spangler it was to be a very special night. The sale of this steer culminates his long and successful 4-H career. However, he does plan to return to the club next year as a leader. He served as the president of the Adams County 4-H Beef Club this past year.

In addition to picking up a sizable check and a trophy for having the Grand Champion steer, Spangler also won the title of Advanced Champion Fitter and Showman.

Reserve Grand Champion steer was a 1225 pound Limousin x Angus cross shown by Jason Boyer, East Berlin. Jason, who served as vice-president of the 4-H Beef Club, hails from a 400 acre farm, 80 acres of which he and his brother farm together as part of their FFA work.

This steer sold for $1.70 per pound to Glen W. Boyer & Sons, Electrical Contractors. Contending bidder was Weikerts Meat Markets. Jason also was selected as the Senior Champion Fitter and Showman.

Champion Lightweight was exhibited by Stan Reever, East Berlin. This 1035 pound Charolais x Hereford cross sold for $1.00 per pound to Peoples State Bank of East Berlin. Stan also won the title of Junior Champion Fitter and Showman.

Andy Lebo, Abbottstown, showed the Reserve Champion Lightweight, a 1090 pound Angus x Hereford cross. Lingg & Lingg Attorneys, Gettysburg, bought this steer at $1.15 per pound.

Mike Franek, Littlestown, showed the Reserve Champion Middleweight steer, a 1185 pound Polled Hereford. He sold for $.92 to CCNB Bank, New Oxford.

Reserve Champion Heavyweight was exhibited by Travis Sherman, Abbottstown. This 1355 pound Chianina x Angus cross commanded $.85 per pound from Rick Hamm, York.

Todd Lebo, Abbottstown, picked up a special trophy as the Intermediate Champion Showman and Fitter.

Two special items were auctioned off at the start of the sale. Proceeds from their sale were donated to help support the costs of the sale. A specially decorated cake made by Joanne Boyer sold for $120.00 to the Wenger Saddlery. This cake was cut and served after the sale. Also, a special clock donated by Terry King sold to a syndicate for $65.00.

Chet Hughes, Lancaster County Extension Service, served as judge of this year's show. Harry Bachman was the auctioneer.

We Put More Men In The Field Than The United States Army.

Currently, Uncle Sam keeps around 300,000 army soldiers on active duty.

Farm Credit, on the other hand, helps keep over 2 million farmers on active duty. With more loans for more farming needs than any other lending institution.

For many of you, we've been there from the beginning. With money for land, as well as your house and barn.

We help stock the farm, too. With loans for everything from cows to catfish. Seeds to saplings. Fertilizer to fencing.

And when it's time for a new tractor or pick-up, just call us to get the wheels turning.

Farming has been our only field of interest for seventy years. That's because we're farmers too. Farm Credit is owned and controlled by the same farmers who use its services.

What's more, come rain or shine, we'll stick by you in any kind of weather. And when you think about it, that's reason enough to join our ranks.

Vaitl Carries On Family Tradition

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

EPHRATA — Last Saturday when Florence Vaitl was sworn in as president of the Lancaster County Society of Farm Women, she was carrying on a family tradition. Florence, Ephrata, is the third generation of her family to be a member of Society #3.

She has been attending county board meetings regularly as second vice president, but Florence recalls that this was not her first experience going to county board, saying, "My mother was county secretary, and I went to my first executive board meeting when I was three-weeks-old." Her mother, Esther Stuber, also participated in the county convention last weekend, recalling with others events from the history of the county organization.

Florence adds, "I grew up in a family where you went to Farm Women on the third Saturday of the month." Children went along to meetings, and sometimes there may have been 20 to 30 children. It was a natural move, then, for her to become a full-fledged member at 14.

Her grandmother, Florence Mohler, was a charter member of Society #3. About her grandmother, Florence says, "For her time, she was very progressive in her thinking. I have my grandmother's diaries, and they were a very independent group of farm women."

The first societies in Pennsylvania were founded 70 years ago, and Florence says the idea was a good one for the time. With the life of rural women and farm women considerably different then, it gave women a chance to socialize with others. Florence says, "Remember, they didn't even have electrification."

Farm women took care of the house and the children, and for most of them, the chickens and garden were also their responsibility, according to Florence. "When I was a child, many of the programs were geared toward making the work that we had to do easier. We had programs on how to care for the children, how to can foods safely, how to cook to maintain nutrients and other things to make life easier and better. Now our programs are interesting and stimulating, but they don't necessarily improve what we do. We are now all better educated."

However, Florence noted with amusement that a recent Farm Women program she visited featured a lady who does her own spinning. "We've come full circle," she concludes.

Florence is jumping prematurely into the president's seat, instead of following the traditional route of being elected to serve two years as second vice president, and two years as first vice president. She began serving her term as second vice-president, but quickly moved up the line of succession when first vice-president Hazel Ulrich remarried and realized she would be spending much of her time out of the area. Florence is not too concerned about the lapse, saying, "I have a very good first vice-president, and we will be electing a second vice president."

Her experience as past state president of the Pennsylvania Association of County-Affiliated Homes and as a graduate of the Leadership Lancaster will help her as she assumes her new role.

Florence states simply, "I hope to be an effective county president. There are some areas I want to look at, such as health. After all, we are an aging organization." Florence estimates that the average age of the society members is 60, and says that there are fewer charter members left.

She notes, "Right now, we are expected to have one safety meeting a year, and I would like to see that expanded to health. Health is an issue I want to deal with." She said the original intent of asking societies to hold a safety meeting had to do with educating them about the need for farm safety, particularly with children. "It was a major thrust — get children off farm equipment."

Another area of concern, she would like to address during her presidency is that of legislative concerns. "All women should be active with good government, and we should be more aware of our individual roles in good government at all levels."

It made her happy that speakers at the recognition of Farm Women Day were both in government, and Florence noted that perhaps this could become a tradition. "I am inclined to promote it was a government day. We need to get better awareness in our local societies."

One of the speakers at the Farm Women Day program was Pennsylvania Senator Noah Wenger, whom Florence referred to as "a mover and shaker" in the farmland preservation movement. "He did stimulate some controversy and some questions."

The new county president says she understands the farmland preservation issue is "very controversial" and that there are "many sides to the coin." Nevertheless, she said that since 20 percent of the people make their living in farming or agri-business, it is an important part of the economy.

She adds, "I think we are in the business of helping to feed the world. I know there are surpluses, but there are also hungry people in the world. The problem has not been handled well. To lose farmland is to diminish our productivity to feed the world. The world's population is growing."

Florence also feels strongly that it must be preserved throughout the state, and she adds, "As long as there is a reasonable amount of farmland and rural people, there will be those who are interested in preserving the rural way of life, and willing to be members of Farm Women."

Since her membership in Farm Women included a 20 year hiatus while she lived elsewhere in Pennsylvania, Florence dates her involvement in Farm Women here in two segments. She says, "I was president of my society in my other life in Lancaster County. When I returned it was just like I had never left." She was in line to be president of her society again while serving as first vice-president of the county, but since she moved right into the presidency, she said she could never do both.

Since her society is in the middle of a major building program, working on a mobile kitchen to be used at their food booth at the Ephrata Fair, Florence says it will work out nicely for the present president to continue in the role and carry the project through to completion. Selling food at the Ephrata Fair is the major fundraiser of Society 3.

Working in the kitchen at the fair is a pleasure for Florence, and she gives credit to the members' husbands for their help. "One of the things we forget is that we couldn't do all this without the support of our husbands. It takes time and effort, and the men are very supportive and they help a lot at the fair." Her society recognizes the men once a year in appreciation for their understanding the "late suppers and the missed meals."

Florence feels strongly that the Farm Women Societies are filling a need for their members and for the communities. Last year they gave in excess of $10,000 in charities, and as a county group they donated $5,650 to the Water Street Rescue Mission and the Make A Wish Foundation. "They do a lot of volunteer work, and they serve as a support system for each other," Florence explains.

Serving as county president will keep Florence moving, and she said she looks forward to visiting many of the county societies. However, her professional life as a licensed nursing home administrator will soon be in full swing, and she said she will have to curtail the number of meetings she can attend.

Also, Florence adds, "My family is really important to me." Her family includes husband Rudolf, three children and four stepchildren.

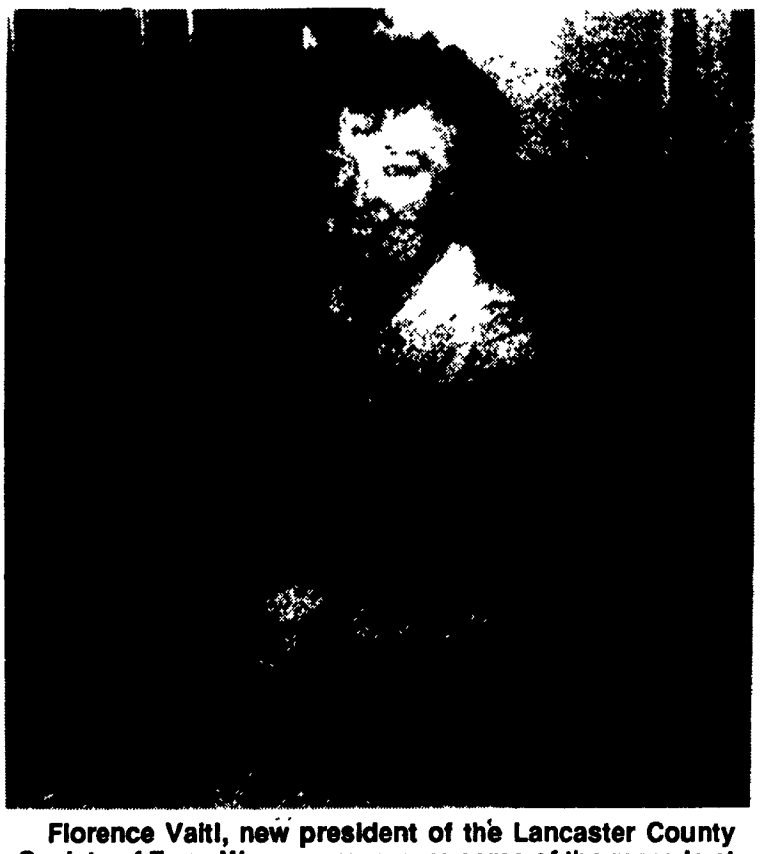
She enjoys church work at Bethany United Church of Christ, and in her spare time likes to go to flea markets. She said she also likes to use her long "row of cookbooks," and "I never get enough reading done."

Florence admits that she is "concerned" about the future of Farm Women, noting that her own society has just one charter member still living. She adds, "The charter members of other societies are well up in years."

However, with three generations of farm women in her history, she is looking forward to carrying on a personal tradition, and a tradition which she feels is good for farm women members and for the community.

Newly installed president Florence Vaitl encourages the farm women societies to make the next 70 years as memorial as the last 70.

Florence stands by the mantel of her Ephrata home. As she begins her presidency, she is looking forward to carrying on a family tradition of Farm Women service begun by her grandmother.



Florence Vaitl, new president of the Lancaster County Society of Farm Women, goes over some of the records at the kitchen table in her Ephrata home. Florence has been a member of Society #3 since she was 14 and is the third generation of her family to be a member.

Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

ABOUT CRANBERRIES

What would Thanksgiving dinner be without cranberries? Less nutritious, for one thing, and not nearly as colorful. The plump red fruit is high in dietary fiber and potassium, and one-half a cup of chopped raw cranberries provides about 13% of the daily requirement of vitamin C. The calorie count is more good news--just 27 calories per one-half cup of the chopped fruit.

You can enjoy all these benefits if you eat dishes prepared with raw cranberries and not much sugar, such as homemade cranberry-orange relish. If you like cooked cranberry sauce, finding a low-calorie commercial product is virtually impossible (unless it contains artificial sweetener). The added sugar in store-bought cranberry sauce increases the calories to 209 per one-half cup. And cooking significantly reduces the vitamin C content.

You can cut down on the calories by making your own sauce with apple juice as the sweetener. The following recipe for whole-cranberry sauce has half the calories of most commercial products. The taste will be slightly tart and zesty. Bring 1 cup frozen apple juice concentrate to a boil in a saucepan. Add 4 cups cranberries. Reduce heat and simmer, stirring frequently, for 7 to 10 minutes or until thickened. Stir in 1 tablespoon grated orange peel and remove from the heat. Let cool to room temperature, then cover and refrigerate. Makes 8 servings, about ½ cup each.

Cranberries are wonderful additions to muffins, cookies, and pies, and to stuffing for apples, squash and chicken. They store well; keep in the refrigerator for about a month, in the freezer for a year. For freezing, place berries in a double plastic bag: when ready to use, do not thaw the berries before adding them to other ingredients.

Choosing Pots For Plants

Should you use plastic or clay pots for your plants? The choice depends on you. Here are some of the differences.

Plastic pots are nonporous, so plants need watering less frequently. And the pot and saucer are safe to place on furniture and other moisture-sensitive areas since they do not sweat. Plastic is hard to break and light enough for hanging plants. The containers are available in a variety of colors.

Clay pots are classic. Plants in clay pots must be watered more often because the pots are porous. They are also breakable. Since clay is heavy, it makes a sturdy container particularly for outside areas. Be sure to protect moisture-sensitive surfaces such as furniture, carpets, and wood floors with a waterproof base under the pot and saucer in order to prevent possible staining.

Any containers should be washed thoroughly in detergent suds and water before being used again. Remove any salt or residue from the sides of the pots by scrubbing with a steel wool soap pad. Soak clay pots overnight before potting.

4-H'ers Attend 3-Day Forum

CHESTER CO. — Volunteer 4-H leaders Dolores Simasek, Eugene Simasek, Pam Taws, and Davida Waters of Chester County along with 61 other leaders from Pennsylvania, have returned from a three-day Northeast Regional Forum for 4-H leaders, held Oct. 8-10 in Portland, Maine.

Attended by some 400 leaders from 12 northeastern states, the forum featured educational workshops on 4-H activities from landscaping to quilting to bicycle repair. Other sessions focused on the roles and responsibilities of leaders, including recruitment of resource people, understanding youngsters' varied learning styles, and working with gifted or handicapped children.

Dr. V. Milton Boyce, assistant deputy administrator for the national 4-H program and a 4-H leader, delivered a keynote address on "Volunteerism from the Perspective of the Volunteer."

Between workshops, the volunteers visited Portland landmarks and the L.L. Bean Store in nearby Freeport. An island clambake and cruise in Casco Bay gave participants a chance to meet and share experiences.

The Northeast Regional Forum is an annual event, aimed at celebrating and motivating the estimated 104,000 4-H volunteers in the northeastern states. Different states host the event each year.

Irish Natives Visit Lancaster

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

MOUNT JOY — "It is beyond my expectations. It is really beautiful." This is the way Rose Bell described her first visit to the United States from County Cork in southern Ireland. One of 34 visitors who came to Lancaster County last week with the Friendship Force International, Bell said she had found her American hosts to be "overgenerous."

Bell was staying in the Mount Joy farm home of Arlene and Paul Witman after spending one week with the rest of her delegation in the suburban Washington, D.C. area. Through the Friendship Force, visitors have two home stays of one week each.

Also being hosted at the Witman home was Karel Bacik, an executive planner with Cork Corporation, the administrators of the city of Cork. Balik had attended college in the United States, and recalled, "I had so many nice memories of my year and a half in the United States. Now it is lovely to live in homes."

One of their first treats was a visit to Donegal Presbyterian church with Mary Sarver as a guide. The two were delighted to learn of the many Irish names in the surrounding areas. Bacik said that Frances Makemie, one of the organizers of the Presbyterians in this area, had been featured recently on a stamp in Ireland. According to Sarver, it was the Irish who opened the frontier, accounting for the Irish influence in this area.

In their native County Cork, Bell says the landscape offers "a bit of everything." Bacik agreed, saying, "We are rather unique in having mountains."

Bell added that there are many farms, both large and small, with cattle and pigs being the dominant agricultural industry. Their countryside is the legendary green, but Bacik says, "It is much greener than here, but from sheer neglect. The hedge rows are dense with greenery."

Nora and John O'Brien also stayed in the Mount Joy area, in the farm home of Hazel and Henry Reist. Mrs. O'Brien was equally enthusiastic about the reception they have had in the homes in this country. "It's fantastic. It's lovely here."

The visitors agrees they are enjoying the food, but after the first week O'Brien said, "I miss potatoes. We have them every day in Ireland." When asked what they especially wanted to see while in the United States, O'Brien said, "Anything they show us will be nice."

The group visited the state Capitol in Harrisburg and met with State Senator Gibson Armstrong. They traveled to Hershey and learned a little about Lancaster County agriculture by visiting the Reist Seed Company in Mount Joy.

Arlene Witman, back, and Mary Sarver, right, welcome Karel Bacik, left, and Rose Bell into their home through the Friendship Force International. Karel and Rose were two of 34 visitors from Ireland who visited in this country for two weeks.

Nora O'Brien points out her home in Ireland to her Lancaster County host, Hazel Reist, Mount Joy. Nora and her husband John were guests of the Reists through Friendship Force.

Dress Up Your Thanksgiving Dinner

There's more than one way to stuff a bird, but you can't go wrong with ultra-easy Mushroom-Rice stuffing.

Turkey for the holidays? Naturally!

Did you know that over one-half of the turkey eaten in the United States today is purchased in some form other than a whole turkey. So if you can't use a whole turkey, buy part of one.

According to the United States Department of Agriculture, turkey is one of the best meat buys. It is high in protein and low in fat and there is little shringage during cooking.

Turkey is very low in saturated fat and also total fats, which is a healthy reason to add it to your everyday meals rather than just save it for the holidays. Since turkey is compatible with other foods, it takes on flavor from sauces, herbs and spices during cooking.

Prepare ahead of time for the busy holiday dinner, but remember DO NOT STUFF FRESH POULTRY BEFORE READY TO COOK. Attempting to stuff a bird and store it in the refrigerator or freezer is dangerous because it can cause food poisoning. The key to preventing excessive bacterial growth while thawing a frozen bird is to keep it cold. Thaw in the refrigerator or by placing it in cold water in its unopened bag in the sink. Change the water frequently to assure safe but effective thawing.

You decide whether you will serve the traditional holiday turkey, try something new and daring like Turkey Italian Style or buy smoked turkey and simply reheat. Whatever you decide, dress up your holiday meal by trying some of our reader's favorite desserts and salads.

KENTUCKY HERBAL CHEESE CAKE

Serve as an appetizer with crackers or in a wedge with fresh fruit as dessert.

Crust

½ cup cold butter, cut in 1 T. slices
1 cup plain flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg yolk
grated rind of 1 lemon

Filling

1 small onion, chopped
3 tablespoons butter
1¼ cups Parmesan cheese (3 oz.)
3 8-oz. pks. cream cheese or Neufchatel, softened
3 tablespoons flour
4 eggs
juice of 1 lemon
½ cup chopped parsley
½ teaspoon each oregano, basil, tarragon, rosemary
2 teaspoons salt
dash tobasco

To Make Crust: Put all ingredients in food processor. Pulse until mixture crumbles and forms ball. Press onto bottom half-way up sides of 9½ or 10 inch springform pan (with removable bottom). You may need to flour your fingers. This gets soft. Cover evenly. Hold in freezer to firm until you've made the filling.

Filling- Preheat oven to 400°. Saute onion in butter until soft, but not browned. In food processor, blend all ingredients until smooth. Pour filling into crust. Bake 10 minutes; reduce heat to 325° for 50 minutes. Remove from oven, let sit 1 hour. Refrigerate at least 5 hours before removing from pan to firm. Let sit at room temperature 1 hour before serving to bring out flavors.

Serves: 20.

Best made 3 days before serving. Freezes well.

Note: You could make smaller versions if you use foil pans that can be "sacrificed" to get the cheesecake out of the pan.

Microwave Cooking

Thanksgiving is just around the corner and that means that it is "turkey time" again! Turkey is high in protein yet low in fat and cholesterol, making it a good choice for a healthy heart food plan. You can easily enhance the mild flavor of turkey by your creative use of seasonings, sauces and accompaniments. Also you can substitute turkey in many of your favorite family recipes such as meat loaf, chili, or sloppy joes.

Turkey is also quite versatile, making it a favorite in salads, sandwiches and casseroles. Be creative yet easy on your budget with turkey prepared in one of the following ways:

Microwaved Turkey Breast

½ turkey breast (about 3 pounds)
salt and pepper, paprika

Place turkey breast skin-side down in 12x8x2 inch microwave-safe baking dish. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on high power 12 minutes (4 minutes per pound). Then, Microwave on medium power for 18 to 20 minutes (6 to 7 minutes per pound) or until turkey is tender (175 degrees), turning skin-side-up halfway through cooking time and sprinkling skin with paprika.

Turkey Tips

1. Turkey can be sprinkled with poultry browning and seasoning powder, omitting salt, pepper and paprika.

2. Occasionally spoon drippings over turkey for more moist meat.

3. Three cups cubed cooked turkey can be substituted for ground turkey meat.

4. Turkey cutlets are delicious served with warm spaghetti or pizza sauce spooned over each. Sprinkle with a little Mozzarella cheese for added flavor.

Turkey Almondine in Patty Shells

¼ cup slivered almonds
1 teaspoon butter or margarine
2 cups (8 ounces) sliced fresh mushrooms
3 green onions, sliced
2 Tablespoons butter or margarine
1½ Tablespoons cornstarch
1 Tablespoon instant chicken bouillon
1 Tablespoon soy sauce
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
1 cup water
2 cups cubed cooked turkey
2 cups fresh pea pods
1 jar (2 ounces) chopped pimiento
6 baked patty shells

1. Combine almonds and butter in small microwave-safe baking dish.

2. Microwave (high), uncovered, 2½ to 3½ minutes or until toasted, stirring twice. Set aside. Combine mushrooms, onion and butter in 1½ quart microwave-safe casserole.

3. Microwave (high), uncovered, 3 to 4 minutes or until mushrooms are just about tender, stirring once. Stir in cornstarch, bouillon, soy sauce, garlic powder and water.

4. Microwave (high), uncovered, 2 to 3 minutes or until mixture boils and thickens, stirring twice. Stir in turkey, pea pods and pimiento. Cover with casserole lid.

5. Microwave (high), 4 to 5 minutes or until heated through, stirring once. Spoon into baked patty shells; top with almonds. May substitute split baked croissants or chow mein noodles instead of patty shells.

Let's Talk Turkey

Turkey Stuffing Tactics

Here are a few simple tips for stuffing poultry.

1. Lightly spoon some of the stuffing into the neck cavity, then into the body cavity. Don't pack the stuffing; it needs room to expand during roasting.

2. To keep the stuffing inside the bird, pull the neck skin over the stuffing to back of the bird. Use a wooden or metal skewer to hold the skin in place. Tuck drumsticks under the band of skin across the tail or tie the drumsticks to the tail.

3. Insert a meat thermometer in the center of the inside thigh muscle. The bulb shouldn't touch the bone. Place the bird on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Brush with melted butter. Cover loosely with foil and roast in a 325° oven until the thermometer registers 180° to 185° (about 4 to 5 hours for a 12- to 14-pound turkey).

Stuffing for a Scaled-down Feast

For a smaller bird, tailor the amount of stuffing. Halve any of the three recipes that follow to stuff a 5- or 6-pound capon or roasting chicken, for example. Or, trim the recipes down even more to a fourth and stuff two 1- or 1½ -pound Cornish game hens.

Extra Stuffing?

If you have more stuffing than you can fit in the fowl's cavity, measure the extra. Transfer to a casserole. For every cup of stuffing, stir in 2 teaspoons of chicken broth or water. (This adds necessary moistness since the stuffing in the casserole won't be soaking up the flavorful poultry juices.) Cover and chill. Place casserole in the oven with bird during the last 20 to 40 minutes of roasting.

Safety Tips

• Stuff all types of poultry just before cooking. The risk is too great for bacterial contamination if you refrigerate a stuffed, uncooked bird.

• After the meal, remove leftover stuffing from the bird. Store immediately in a covered container in the refrigerator. Plan on using the stuffing within a few days.

1. Utility—What could be more useful than a product that results in greater feed efficiency and more profitable ratio of grain fed to milk produced?

2. Novelty—The technology involved in the Pro:Right RC formulation process is one-of-a-kind. You may not have taken advantage of it yet, but many of your neighbors have. And more are switching to Pro:Right RC every day.

3. Unobviousness—Agway developed the process of regulating and balancing the carbohydrates and protein in a cow's ration only after years of on-farm testing and research.

A patent gives the inventor the right to exclude others from making, using or selling the invention for 17 years. No matter what some other feed companies may tell you, only Agway has Pro:Right RC, with its patented process to help you get more milk per feed dollar. . . and higher profits.

Brandt Family Leads Double Identities

BY LOU ANN GOOD

ELIZABETHTOWN — Robert and Renee Brandt with their three children live two separate lifestyles. In one, they are Elizabethtown dairy farmers and in the other, they are the aristocratic G. Dawson Coleman family of the 19th-century.

When Renee tells about their life, it's difficult to tell where the Coleman alias ends and the real Brandt family begins because Renee slips as easily into recounting their past in the first person as she does in telling about the present.

A book about Abe Lincoln kindled Renee's preoccupation with Civil War history while she was in elementary school. She read civil war history with voraciousness while still in high school. "After awhile," Renee said, "it gets to the point where you no longer want to read it, you want to live it and actually bring the past alive."

Making history come alive is what she does with her husband and children, Heather,8; Taylor, 5; and Elyse,2. To do this, they joined the 93rd regiment of Lebanon soilders. This band of soldiers portrays an actual unit of Lebanon men who fought during the Civil War. The 93rd regiment reinacts actual battle scenes where men set up tents that are furnished inside and outside similar to those of the civil war period. People must buy their own costumes and Renee said, "Many times, it costs $1,000 to equip a soilder with uniform, gun and tent."

G. Dawson Coleman, Lebanon, was called the father of the unit. He sponsored the soilders by providing them with guns, coats, medical care and food.

The Brandts had a choice on who they wanted to portray. "We wanted to be a civilian family," Renee said, "and we found the Coleman's history so fascinating."

The Brandt's carried on a very diligent search of the Coleman estate by studying records at the Lebanon County Historical Society and talking with those who have researched the past. They have photo albums filled with pictures of the Coleman family and their estate that had mansions in the Lebanon and Brickerville area.

Robert portrays the deeply religious Coleman who was the unit's provider and spiritual leader. His suit with tails was tailor made and he said, as a gentleman Robert said, he cannot remove his coat while visiting with a lady. He admits that summer heat is quite uncomfortable when they reinact historical scenes, but its a hobby that he enjoys.

Renee has designed and sewed costumes for the children and herself that reflect the high fashion taste of the wealthy families of the 1860's era. She put a lot of thought and research into their family's costumes by purchasing and studying seven books on styles from the past. She said she found only four sources in U.S. where period patterns can be purchased.

As Mrs. Coleman, Renee wears a snood which she describes as a glorified hair net. "Crocheting was really in back then," she said. "They crocheted hair nets, collars, cuffs and mitts. A proper lady always had her hands and hair covered when appearing in public. During the 1860's, hats that sat atop women's heads became fashionable. But it was risque," explained Renee, "for then the napes of women's necks were exposed and necks along with ankles were not to be displayed in public. In fact, legs were called limbs because the word "legs" was considered vulgar."

The higher society felt an obligation to keep those less fortunate. And the Coleman family was generous with their wealth. Coleman told the soilders in his regiment, "You should not worry or think about the welfare of your families, because I will care for them." And he did.

As the Brandt's study more of the history of the Colemans, they are intrigued with society's rules and the way they interacted with each other. They found that the south had their blue bloods from aristocratic positions, but the society lines in the north were not as distinct. For it was here, that industry allowed men to gain financially and join the higher class social circles.

Robert explained, "We are not only part of a living history group for our own satisfaction but also to help others learn." "People should be aware of what happened in the past," Renee states. "They should understand their past and where they came from."

Robert added, "If the war would not have been fought our nation could be split and we might be leading very different lifestyles than what we do today."

"It's really sad, so many people know so little about the Civil War," Renee said, "Imagine people sometimes ask, 'Which side won the war?' or 'Whose side did General Lee fight on?'"

This dearth of history knowlegde will not be part of the Brandt family. Besides making history come alive and fun, the Brandt children already are digging into United States history by getting library books about Abe Lincoln, Clara Barton and other historical figures.

With their authentic 18th century costumes, the children steal the show while taking part in reinactments and living history groups. But enjoyment is not a one-sided street. The children are enthusiastic about the part they play. Taylor said, "I like to dress up and go places."

The Brandt's carry their historical interest into everyday homelife. Their home is filled with antiques and decorated accordingly. "Each Christmas, we buy one antique toy and label it for one of the children," Renee said.

The children love to have tea parties where their mother serves tea with colonial-style cookies on their blue willow china. On special ocassions, the family packs a picnic lunch. In keeping with the historical tradition, they use no plastic, aluminum foil, paper cups and plates or plastic wrap. Instead they pack food in old canning jars, wrap it in napkins and use pewter cups and blue willow china.

Renee sums up their 18th century lifestyle by saying, "It's a fun way to make history exciting and alive."

Meanwhile, back on the farm, the Brandt's sixty cows call them back to reality. "It's difficult combining farming and our living history activities," Robert admitted, but he doesn't want to give up either one. "Farming is a lot of hard work, but it gives a lot of satisfaction, " he said. "If you're willing to work harder, you can get more out of it."

So the Brandts continue mixing their two lifestyles by farming about 200 acres and then dressing up like royalty and telling others about life in the 1860's.

Serving visitors tea was a nineteenth century tradition that Renee and Robert Brandt continue to practice in their home.

Meet the Coleman family...excuse me...they're the Brandt family posing for a picture just like their historical predecessors did. In keeping with the 1860's tradition, the father sits, holding the youngest while his wife and older children stand. Renee said that smiling for pictures was not considered acceptable during that era.

Holidays From The Heart

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LEBANON — Do you long to give gifts that warm the hearts of friends and family at Christmas? What gifts carry that special "I care" touch?

For starters, the Lebanon County Cooperative Extension Service offered lots of ideas this past Tuesday through Friday at the Prescott Fire Hall, Lebanon.

The same idea-packed agenda was offered daily and during two evenings by Alletta M. Schadler, extension home economist, and other local craftpersons.

Schadler challenged the audience to be Christmas magicians who make holidays special. With humor and practical tips she illustrated the magical touches that turns an ordinary day into a memory-filled holiday. She suggests that homemakers write down everything they did during last year's holiday. Then, analyze why or why not some chores were unpleasant. For example, if cooking the holiday meal was disasterous because the stove did not work then, to make things go better this year, fix it; but if meal making was 'oo much work, then incorporate others to help prepare it, eat out or go to someone else's home.

She warns that a too highly organized person can ignite a family feud with a person who goes with the flow. "Focus on right priorities—people not projects," she stressed.

For those who do not enjoy the holidays because they should not or can not eat festive holiday food, Schadler suggested many recipes that can be modified with substitute ingredients. She introduced the audience to new foods like low calorie Armenian string cheese and English water crackers, low in sodium and fat.

Some of Schadler's holiday recipes follow:

STRAWBERRY/WALNUT/ BANANA BREAD

1 cup vegetable oil
4 beaten eggs
2 cups sugar
1½ cups mashed strawberries
1 cup mashed banana
1 tablespoon finely shredded orange peel
2 cups finely chopped walnuts
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon cardamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Combine oil, eggs, sugar, strawberries, banana and orange peel. Combine dry ingredients and 1½ cup nuts. Grease and flour baking pans. Sprinkle remaining walnuts in bottom of pana.

Combine moist and dry ingredients. Stir until moistened. Spoon into prepared pans. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for one hour or until toothpick inserted into center comes out clean. Let cool 10 minutes in pan. Remove to wire racks.

Yield: 7 baby-loaf foil pans 5¾ x3¼ x2-inches or 2 9x5-inch pans.

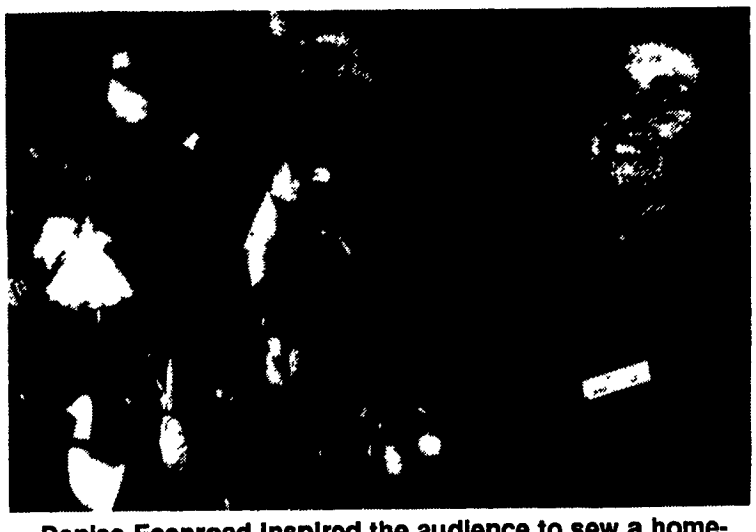
CINNAMON/APPLESAUCE ORNAMENTS

Combine smooth applesause with enough ground cinnamon to form dough. Mix with spoon, k d together with fingers to a dough you can roll. Roll out on aluminum foil or waxed paper. Use more cinnamon as "flour" to prevent sticking on rolling pin or surface. Roll out like cookie dough. Cut out with cutters or use

(Turn to Page B18)

With humor and seriousness, Alletta Schadler introduced the audience to the joys of stir frying.

Dennis Mellot stands in front of the doorway he decorated for Christmas. Directions for the topiary plants that line the doorway are included in the article. Notice the wreath that features spray painted turnips.



Denise Ecenroad inspired the audience to sew a homespun Christmas with her display of keepsake tree ornaments.

knife. Carefully transfer to screen or rack. Let air dry. Turn several times.

If you plan to hang the ornaments, make a small hole with wire or soda straw while dough is still wet. Do not heat, that will cause them to puff. They are not meant to be eaten, although they are not harmful.

For sewing a homespun Christmas, Denise Ecenroad, Myerstown, demonstrated machine applique. Her applique tips include:

1. Reduce tension to practically zero for all machine applique.
2. Use a sharp needle, not one that's been on the machine for a year.
3. Use quality thread rather than your five for a dollar discount brand.
4. Batting can be used, but Thermolan Fleece gives a nicer finished appearance.
5. Pressing as you sew results in a professional look.

Ecenroad, a mother of three, displayed keepsake tree ornaments that she makes for each of her children as a yearly remembrance. Her handcrafted ornaments included items that were stenciled, cross stitched, stuffed, and quilted.

Another local craft enthusiast, Christenna Stamm, demonstrated stencilling for the holidays. Stamm said the secret for neat, professional stencilling is to keep from overloading the brush. She said always brush paint out on a paper towel until consistent in coloration and that a different brush should be used for each color. If the brush is washed out, the water will drip into the bristles and make discolorations or smear the design.

She demonstrated three stencilling methods:

—Dabbing requires hitting the outside of the stencil with the brush and then brushing it towards the center.

—Swirling requires holding the brush straight at all times and taking the brush in a circular pattern around the stencil edges, then brush in a circular pattern in the opposite direction.

—Sponging requires dipping a sponge in paint, blotting on paper towel and then dabbing completely around outside of design before working in towards center.

If using oil paints for stencilling, let each color dry for four hours before using another color on the design. Stamm showed stencils she painted on wood, fabric, paper and baskets.

Floral Designer Dennis G. Mellot of Lebanon started the program by exhibiting his turnip wreath that is guaranteed to catch the attention of bypassers. Mellot spray painted the turnips black and then coated them with polyurethane to protect them. Placed on a gold-colored wreath, it makes a startling doorway display.

Mellot suggest that textures and colors be interspersed with glitter or glass that reflect light in arrangements for eye appeal. From flower shows Mellot gathered "that using house plant material in designs is the up and coming thing." He also stressed the importance of using odd numbers in arrangements to make them more pleasing to the eye.

To assemble a topiary plant, start with a pot (the larger the topiary, the larger the pot required). Cut two circular pieces of wood to sit firmly in the pot near the top and bottom. Drill a hole in the center of the wood slabs for the stem (which is a broom stick for the large doorway ones or a tree stick for smaller ones) to slide through. It should fit snugly. Fill pot between the wooden slabs with sand or stones to give weight to the pot. Firmly attach ball of chicken wire to top of stem. Stuff with fresh greens and trim with clippers if needed to form nice round ball. Add lights, artificial snow or other materials as desired.

During lunch time, the audience had a chance to try stencilling and wiring pine cone wreaths. Ribbon bow making was conducted by members of the Flower Club and the Lebanon Valley Quilters Guild displayed quilted items.

During the lunch hour, Denise Ecenroad demonstrated machine applique.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

'Tis the season to rake leaves and glean cornfields and dig lily bulbs. And, I've been doing all of the above recently.

Only after buying an expensive aerial photograph of our farm do we really see how many trees surround the house. In fact, it is barely visible beneath the maples, evergreens, locusts, apricots, walnuts, pear, persimmon, elm, wild cherry, mimosa and chestnut. So, I have hauled many, many wheelbarrow loads out of the yard and down into my now brown and dry sweetcorn patch.

This year Allen picked up most of the corn that the harvester missed. It was a big job to clear the fields before planting rye. I did manage to help a few sunny afternoons. It is a job that I enjoy doing. There are animals to watch and pretty leaves on nearby trees to enjoy. And, then there is the sense of accomplishment as you watch the piles of corn grow higher before hurrying in to prepare supper for the men.

They will have a surprise for dessert as I've made a large chocolate cake using two cups of chopped green tomatoes. It is very good with added walnuts and orange rind. I'll bet they won't be able to guess the special ingredient!

My cellar is full of pumpkins, squash and sweet potatoes. But, I'll find room for my half-bushel of dahlias, half-bushel of tube roses, bulbs of fifty Aztex lilies, Peruvian lilies, gloriosa lilies and black China lilies.

The flowers and leaves that I dried for bouquets do not take up much room. What they do take is time to arrange in tiny vases that I put in all my downstairs rooms. At lease, they don't need water like my 105 houseplants.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

All mothers initially fall for the idea.

When your children get older, they'll be able to take care of themselves, and not expect you to drop everything and come running every three minutes.

I remember, as a young mother with small children, having moments when I longed for them to be grown and more independent, for a time when I would interact with them as adults, not need to pick up behind them, not need to referee interminable squabbling over irrelevant nonsense. Not worry so much.

Yeah, right.

My own mother and others with more years of experience at this parenthood stuff knew better. The problems and the worry, I was assured, would never go away, just become more complex and complicated.

And, they- of course- were right. I still find myself picking up after 'em, refereeing "debates" of different subjects, and sometimes being summoned every three minutes. And still worrying.

"Mom, I just rolled my three-wheeler."

Sure you did. It's a gorgeous afternoon, you weren't going fast, and the hill isn't all that steep. Besides, I wasn't fifty yards away and never saw or heard a thing.

Soil jammed in the end of the handlebars assures me that the three-wheeler did indeed overturn in the meadow, while I focused my binoculars on a couple of finches.

And- get this- it was my fault. The kid made a quick turn to head my direction when he saw me nearby, and the sudden, angled turn simply laid the bike over. On his ankle. Which, he groans, hurts.

Wiggle your toes, I order. He does, but winces in pain. End of physical examination. If it works, not to worry too much.

An hour later, the ankle has doubled in size and tolerates no weight. I'd almost wager the monthly milk check the fat ankle harbors a broken bone.

"Lucky it didn't roll on your head," intones a hospital emergency room nurse, smothering a grin. After a quick X-ray, another announces to this kid maneuvering his wheelchair around the hall that they're ready to amputate.

Blessedly, not a break can be found. But, the swelling is too severe to determine the ankle's exact status otherwise. It has not, however, ruined his appetite. My fast-food order, lugged home with the kid on crutches who must keep his foot elevated, boosts the local economy.

There are few things more restless than a male confined to one spot for a recuperative period, but not otherwise ill.

"Mom, can you get me some ice?."

"Mom, the ice slipped off my ankle."

"Mom, can you change TV channels?"

"Mom, you have to come and see this."

"Mom, let one of the cats in."

"Mom, can you get me my Dairy Bowl questions to study?"

"Mom, can you get me more ice?"

"Mom, is there anything here to drink."

"Mom, can you get me an aspirin?

"Mom, let another cat in with me."

"Mom, can I have something to eat?"

"Mom, is there another pillow around you can get for me?"

By mid-week, with a sigh of relief, I haul the kid back to school. Even before lunch, I answer a call from the school nurse's office.

"Mom, can you please come and get me?"

Two followup trips to our physician assure us that the fat, purple ankle is slowly healing - but will take time, and several more days of rest and elevation. I add more prayers of thanks that this accident was so minor, take a deep breath, and restock milk, grape juice, pillows and study materials for the rest of the week. A friend sends him a cake. The cats are ecstatic.

"Mom, can you take me to school?" Yes, indeed. With pleasure.

"And, can you pick me up afterward?"

As always, Mother was right.

Sometimes, indeed, it was easier and less worrisome when you could just put 'em in the playpen for an hour or two.

Turkey Tips

Traditionally, roast turkey is the star of the Thanksgiving meal. As the holiday approaches, Debbie Amsden, University of Delaware Extension home economist, gets numerous requests for information on buying, storing and preparing these birds.

A frequently asked question is how much turkey to prepare. Amsden recommends buying ½ to 1 pound of uncooked turkey per person, depending on the amount of leftovers desired. Remember that market weight includes giblets and inedible bones.

Another question is how long turkeys can be frozen and still retain their quality. The home economist says turkeys that have been frozen for up to a year at 0 degrees F are fine for Thanksgiving dinner. Those frozen for longer periods are still safe to eat but due to texture change are best if used in soups and stews. Consumers who want to serve fresh turkey should plan to cook it within two days of purchase. "Don't buy a fresh bird before Tuesday of Thanksgiving week," cautions Amsden, "or it will have to be frozen at home."

She often gets requests for shortcuts in cooking turkey. "Once you start to cook, you must complete the whole process," she says. "There's really no way around the long hours needed for roasting." However, she offers some time-saving tips for other parts of the holiday meal. Quick breads, gelatin salads and relish trays can be prepared ahead of time. Vegetables can be made oven-ready the night before. Stuffing ingredients can be prepared in advance, stored in a refrigerated container, and mixed together just before baking. Recipes containing meat should definitely not be mixed until just before stuffing the bird. "With most of the side dishes already prepared, you'll have time to visit with friends and family while the turkey is roasting," she says.

Amsden offers some final advice for a relaxing Thanksgiving. "Be realistic about the amount and variety of food you prepare. Three salads, five vegetables and four desserts aren't essential for a happy holiday meal."

Additional information on turkey preparation is found in the free fact sheet, "Let's Talk Turkey," available from the county Extension office in Newark, (451-1239), Dover (697-4000) or Georgetown (856-7303).

Dip into your favorite sour cream dip with something other than the old vegetable mainstays -- carrots and celery sticks. Expand your repertoire to include fresh mushrooms, cherry tomatoes, radishes, green pepper strips, zucchini, pea pods, jicama slices or sweet potato slices. Or, crisp-cook baby carrots, brussels sprouts, cauliflower, broccoli flowerets, green beans, or asparagus; then chill before serving with your favorite dip.

Lancaster Farm Women Celebrate 70 Years

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LANCASTER — For seventy years, the Lancaster County Society of Farm Women have worked hard to brighten corners wherever they are. And they aren't about to stop. Last Saturday, during their annual convention held at the Farm and Home Center, newly elected society president Florence Vaitl, Ephrata, encouraged members to "let's work to make the next 70 years as memorial as the past 70."

Highlights of those memorial years since the group's 1917 inception were shared by Mary Clark, Society 1; Donna Cook, Society 33; Miriam DeLong, Society 21; Barbara Moore, Society 1; Esther Petticoffer, Society 2; Esther Stuber, Society 3; and Lois Will, Society 4. They recalled picnics on the White House lawns, speeches by Eleanor Roosevelt and their efforts for being instrumental in developing 4-H clubs and hot school lunches.

Esther Stuber portrayed the dedication of past members by recalling her mother's motto of "God first, family second and then farm women."

The only living member of the first society, Barbara Moore who will be 103-years-old on November 29, attended the annual convention just like she has every convention for the past 70 years. Outgoing president Mrs. Mary Shellenberger presented Mrs. Moore with a cake decorated with the farm women emblem that features the holly hock flower "that stands tall in the valley of life yet retains humility" and their motto "For Happiness."

Vaitl reviewed the efforts of the 33 county societies that comprise 898 members who, this year, raised $5,650 to give to Make A Wish Foundation and the Water Street Rescue Mission. Robert McMillen, director of Water Street Mission and Robert Nickey, board member of Make A Wish each accepted a check for $2,825 and told of the differences their organizations can make in lives due to contributions.

New officers installed in additional to Vaitl were Judy Greenleaf of Society 15; first vice president and Corinne Nissley, second vice president.

Other activities included a memorial service for members who have died during the past year, hostess gifts for visiting officers, door prizes and attendance awards. "The Dulcimer Folk" provided the entertainment with their hand-crafted string instruments and their Appalacian Mountain folk tunes.

Outgoing president Mary Shellenberger presents checks to Robert Nickey of Make A Wish Foundation and to Robert McMillan of the Water Street Rescue Mission.

York Farm Women Gather

BY JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK — York County Society of Farm Women saluted the 200th anniversary of the Constitution during the group's 48th annual convention, held November 5 at Wisehaven Hall.

The county Society continued a tradition of several years, the awarding of contributions to local charitable organizations. Recipients of $1,000 checks each this year were the Margaret E. Moul home for the Cerebral Palsied, Access York, and the York Chapter of the American Diabetes Association.

Members elected two officers to the Farm Women leadership for 1988. Peggy Spiese, Groups #18, was elected to serve as recording secretary, and Hazel Lighty, Group #4, will serve as 2nd vice-president.

In her president's report, Ruth Santiago noted some $6,000 raised from the group's quilt project for donation to community organizations, plus nearly $14,000 donated in addition by local societies, during her two-year term.

President-elect Susan Lehman presented a combined societies' report of 563 members belonging to 37 societies in the county, 34 of them presently active. More than $7460 was donated by the societies during 1987 to community outreach programs and organizations. She also stressed a continuing need for the Farm Women to support and work with local youth.

Recognition pins were awarded to 12 members who became 80-year-olds since the 1986 convention. Recipients were Pauline Rishel, Blanche Strausbaugh and Mary Decker, Group #1, C. Catherine Bender and Bertha Myers, Group #5, Viola Druck, Group #7, Velma Sechrist and Elsie Fink, Group #14, Mamie Dize, Group #19, Claudia Bailey, Group #20, Linnie Stine, Group #25, and Bertel Ritz, Group #26.

Ten deceased members were remembered in the Memorial service. They were Jessie Gross, Group #1, Evelyn Kottcamp, Group #3, Mary Anderson, Group #5, Beatrice Heindel, Group #7,

MORE THAN A MOWER.

Of course, a Kubota G-Series lawn and garden tractor is a great way to cut the grass. And with a liquid-cooled 2- or 3-cylinder diesel engine, a Kubota is designed to outlast ordinary gas mowers by several seasons.

But that's not all. A Kubota G has a live front PTO shaft drive and a variety of hard-working implements. For example, you can choose a snowblower, tiller or front blade. There are five Kubota G models, from 10 to 16 horsepower. Some come with hydrostatic transmissions as standard equipment.

A Kubota G-Series diesel lawn and garden tractor. There's more to it than you think.

Lebanon Countians: Document Your Quilts

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LEBANON — Jean Frick, Lebanon, believes quilts tell the history of their era. But how quickly those valuable pieces of art can disappear because someone throws away a frayed quilt or sells it to someone outside of the family.

Frick knows a lot of horror stories about quilts and she is not about to let more be added to her list. She is coordinating efforts of county organizations and businesses to document quilts of all ages, conditions and styles.

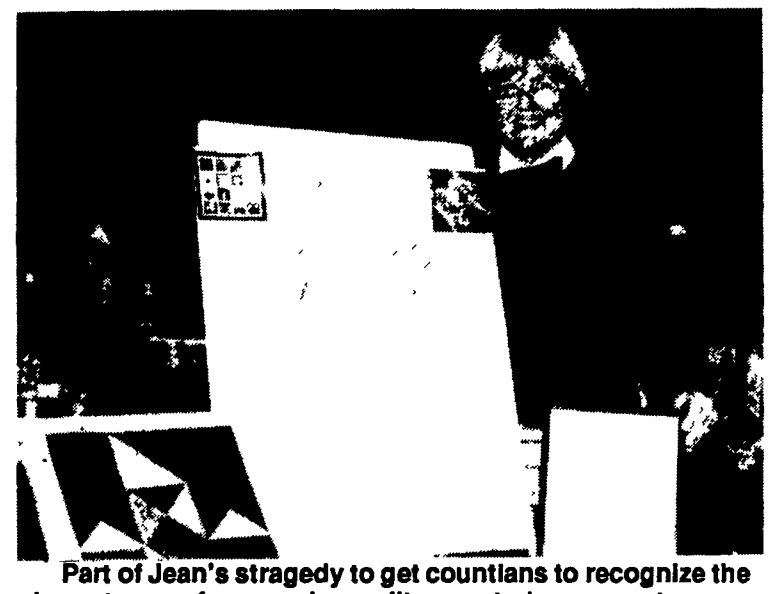
Jean Frick is determined to preserve Lebanon County's quilt history. Here she displays a quilt that will be documented so that future generations will know the story behind the quilt.

A quilt documentation is an attempt to compile a regional history on quilts before those facts are lost. By documenting and photographing the quilts of a specific region, the artistry of quiltmakers can be shared and preserved.

If you own any quilts, quilt tops, blocks or patches made in Lebanon before 1940, bring them to one of the scheduled sites during November 16-21.

Frick promises, "At no time will you be separated from your quilt." During the process, quilts will receive a number, a trained documentor will ask for the history of the quilt: the person who made the quilt, the circumstances and family information available. In many cases, this information has been lost, but don't despair. Frick said the quilt will be documented with the information available.

This information will include the fabric used, the batting, color, pattern, stitches per inch and the name of the present owner. Each quilt documented will be photographed. From those about 100 will be featured in a book planned for publication.



Part of Jean's stragedy to get countians to recognize the importance of preserving quilts was to have county commissioners proclaim November as "Lebanon County Quilt Month."

Quilts selected for the book photos will not necessarily be the most beautiful, the newest or cleanest, but will be chosen for the most typical or most unusual or for its historical value.

Slides of documented quilts and their information will be placed in a permanent file at the Lebanon Historical Society.

Quilt owners will be given a muslim tag that can be sewn to the back of their quilt. The tag will tell who owns the quilt, who quilted it, the date made and the date documented. "When this is done," Frick said, "people are less likely to cut up, discard or sell the quilt." According to Frick, studies show that documentation increases the value of quilts by approximently

York Farm Women

Elizabeth Bair, Group #9, Gertrude Miller, Group #11, Ida Lanius, Group #12, Ethel Shoemaker and Goldie Emig, Group #15, and Catherine Delp, Group #27.

During her state president's report, Naomi Bupp honored two York County 90-year-old members from Group #19, Claudia Amspacher and Nora McCullough. Two scholarships were awarded by the state committee, to recipients Kelly Miller, York County, and Sonja Miller, Dauphin County.

State Farm Women convention is scheduled for January 11 and 12, in Harrisburg, with a fashion show planned as entertainment at the annual banquet. Farm Women societies in Huntingdon, Cambria and Indiana counties will host the 1988 Spring Rally at the Jaffa Mosque in Altoona.

Three members were named winners in the adult division of the Toys for Tots competition for handmade toys. First place went to Helene Beard, with Ruth Keener, second, and Kyna Sechrist, third. Seven-year-old David Kiger was selected the winner in the children's division.

Featured speaker for the annual gathering of the county's 37 Farm Women societies was Judge John Rauhauser of York. Judge Rauhauser is a long-time historian and promoter of York and of the key role played by the White Rose city in American revolutionary history.

It was to the frontier settlement of York that the Continental Congress fled in 1777, escaping British troops moving into Philadelphia. On November 15, 1777, while meeting in York, members of that first Congressional representation signed the Articles of Confederation.

"The Articles of Confederation was the first constitution governing the United States," according to Judge Rauhauser. That document, he added, is one of the three most important documents in the nation's history, along with the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.

Representatives then met in Philadelphia ten years later, 1787, to amend the Articles of Confederation, drawing up the Constitution of the United States.

Since the governing Articles of Confederation were signed while the Continental Congress met in York, many historians, including Judge Rauhauser, argue for York's recognition as first capital of the nation. Other historic first's in York included the signing of the new nation's first treaty, the Alliance with France, and the first proclamation of Thanksgiving Day.

That first Thanksgiving, according to Rauhauser, was proclaimed to honor winning the Revolutionary battle of Saratoga and a thankyou to General George Washington.

Conservation Rule Effective, Farmers Could Lose Benefits

UNIVERSITY PARK — Farmers without an approved conservation plan could lose their eligibility for USDA program benefits. That's because of the provisions of the Highly Erodible and Wetland Conservation Final Rule, which became effective September 17, 1987.

Part of title XII of the Food Security Act of 1985, the rule's primary concern is erosion control. Under the provisions, farmers who break out highly erodible land without an approved conservation plan, or who convert wet lands to commodity production, can lose eligibility for USDA programs. Farmers could not only lose price support benefits, but could also lose their eligibility for the Farmers Home Administration loans and loan guarantees, Commodity Credit Corporation Storage payments, disaster payments, Federal Crop Insurance and Conservation Reserve Program payments.

If a farmer has any doubt about the status of his land, he should contact his local Soil Conservation Service office for more information. For example, wetlands are not as easily identified as farmers may think. For land to be considered a wet land, it does not have to be marshy, a swamp or have water on the surface. A farmer does not want to find himself in a position of having done something today, even inadvertently, that could cost him his eligibility for the USDA program benefits mentioned above.

Under Conservation Compliance, farmers are expected to have a conservation plan for any highly erodible land by January 1, 1990. The conservation plan, which has to be developed by the SCS, has to meet all of the current standards and must be fully applied by January 1, 1995. Farmers who presently have a conservation plan need to have their plan reviewed and updated if necessary. Failure to meet either of these deadlines could result in the loss of eligibility.

Farmers are asked to act quickly if they need to adopt a conservation system. SCS personnel in Pennsylvania expect a work load of 12,000-14,000 plans by 1990, so farmers are not advised to wait until 1989 to seek assistance in developing a conservation plan.

Why is this so important? Society's position concerning farmers receiving public benefits is changing. Farmers are not being told not to farm their land, but rather to farm it in a reasonable and responsible manner. Society is asking farmers to adopt a conservation plan which will protect the land if they want to continue receiving publicly provided benefits.

Document Your Quilts

The documentation costs are being funded by Lebanon County Quilt Guild, Penn State Extension Service, Lebanon County Historical Society and Boscov's Store.

Churches have donated the use of the following sites: November 16 - St. Paul's U.C.C., Shaefferstown; November 18 - Zion Luthern Church, Jonestown; November 19 - Grace U.C.C. Church, Richland; November 20 - St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Annville; and November 21 - Old Salem Lutheran Church, Lebanon.

Frick describes herself as a quilt enthusiast who has makes and researches quilts. To help her undertake this project, she majored in PA German People and Culture at Penn State University.

Frick said the tri-county region of Lebanon, Lancaster and Berks is the apex for German craftspersons; yet so much history has been lost since no one bothered to document them. She added, "The budget needed to do this can be operated on a shoe string, the the county needed someone to say, 'I'm going to do this.'"

Frick became that person last May when she asked local organizations and businesses to underwrite the expense. She also convinced county commissioners to proclaim November as "Lebanon County Quilt Month" in support of the project.

Free literature on quilt history, care, display and quilting tips will be given to those who come to the documentation sites.

Prizes like a quilting frame and gift certificates will be given to the family bring the greatest number, the oldest, the most typical and the most unusual and the best history of their quilt and its craftsperson.

Frick anticipates documenting 500-600 quilts during the site days. For more information, call 717 274-3220.

Saucy Ideas Dress Up Holiday Menus

Looking for new ways to add excitement to favorite holiday fare? A saucy solution starts with a basic white sauce enlivened with herbs, condiments, cheese or other equally flavorful ingredients.

At its most basic, a white sauce is nothing more than butter, flour, milk, salt and pepper. The melted butter is combined with the flour to form a roux. When milk is added and the mixture cooked, it becomes thick and velvety smooth.

For a perfect sauce, start with a heavy saucepan. Use a wire whip to blend the roux with the milk and to stir the sauce as it cooks. Add the milk gradually while stirring, and stir the sauce constantly while bringing it to the boil. To shorten the cooking time, the milk can be heated, then added to the roux.

The microwave oven further streamlines preparation and eliminates the need for constant stirring. Use a microwave-safe bowl or glass measuring cup about twice the volume of the ingredients to prevent boil-overs.

While a basic white sauce can be served over cooked green vegetables or potatoes, it most often is dressed up to complement whatever it will accompany. For example, fresh lemon juice and dill added to the basic sauce won't overwhelm the delicate flavor of poached halibut. A rolled beef rib roast, on the other hand, can take the more assertive flavor of a horseradish sauce.

Create your own flavor combinations or try one of the 20 variations which follow. Included are suggestions for appropriate "go-withs."

Pork Industry Checkoff Completes First Year

DES MOINES, IOWA — One year ago, November 1, 1986 marked the beginning of the National 100% Legislative Checkoff Program for the nation's pork industry. Since that time, pork producers have invested over $22 million for promotion, research and consumer education programs aimed at improving the market for pork.

"The strong support and cooperation of producers and the entire pork industry have made the first year of the voluntary checkoff even more successful than anticipated," said National Pork Board President Virgil Rosendale.

National legislative checkoff funds are collected on all U.S.-produced market hogs, feeder pigs and breeding stock, as well as imported hogs and pork products. The checkoff rate is .25 of one percent of gross market value.

The checkoff compliance rate has averaged 95% and refund requests have remained very low, averaging about 10% of all checkoff funds collected during the year. "Pork producers are seeing the great response that checkoff-funded activities are receiving and they are showing tremendous support," Rosendale added.

Promotion/Research /Education

During the past 12 months, over 70% of all checkoff funds have been used in the area of promotion at the national, state and local levels. "The uniform national collection and distribution of checkoff dollars have been more efficient than individual checkoff programs in previous years," said Mike Simpson, National Pork Board Executive Director. "This process has made more dollars available for programs at all levels of the pork producer organization," he said.

The most successful checkoff-funded promotional program has been the "Pork-The Other White Meat" advertising campaign. According to Glenn Grimes, University of Missouri Agriculture Economist, the recent apparent increase in consumer pork demand may be attributed in part to the success of the promotion campaign.

Twenty state pork producer associations contributed $750,000 in state checkoff funds to further strengthen the national advertising effort. The National Pork Board matched the additional state funds.

Retail merchandising and food service also make up an important segment of the national promotion budget. One-on-one contact between regional merchandisers of the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC), pork packers and food retailers has resulted in more space for fresh pork at the nation's meat counters and a greater variety of pork cuts offered to consumers during the past year. "One really exciting project we funded in 1987 was the introduction of America's Cut," said Rosendale. Developed by NPPC and introduced in July, this boneless center cut chop has become one of the fastest growing premium meat products on the market. Over 20,000 retail food stores are expected to carry America's Cut by January 1, 1988.

National TV and radio appearances by pork industry spokesperson, Peggy Fleming, helped increase consumer awareness of the new, leaner pork throughout the past year. The former Olympic gold medalist will be making additional appearances for America's pork producers during 1988.

"Utilizing promotion, research and educational activities in the areas of foodservice, retail merchandising and pork production are all important parts of a balanced and effective checkoff-funded program," Rosendale concluded.

Trait Leaders Awards To Polled Hereford Sires

Polled Hereford bulls who have sired the highest-performing calves in the breed have been recognized as 1988 Trait Leaders. The bulls were selected from among 600 proven sires in the main listing of the new Polled Hereford Sire Summary. The bulls achieved their Trait Leader status on the outstanding performance of their progeny in single traits as well as total performance. The traits are measured by Expected Progeny Difference (EPD).

Fifteen bulls who excelled in balanced performance for calving ease, growth and maternal performance were named Total Performance Trait Leaders. They were BT Butler 452M, BT JR Quester 604M, C&H Grand Slam, Enforcer 107H, GK Justification, Kinnaber Justn 7115J, Lazy BL Viking 30K, M TJ Banner Impact, MKP Magnificaton N16, Reenforcement, RHF Victor 266 964, RHF Victor 355 629, Sterling, Vindicator, WP Patience 26L and WSF PRL Justa Banner.

Verlou 107H Muchmore 16M earned the distinction as the number 1 Calving Ease Trait Leader, with a calving ease EPD ratio of 131.

In the weaning weight category, the top ranking went to SME Ju Ban Butler 26R. His weaning weight EPD was +43.3 lb.

Yearling Weight Trait Leader honors were shared by WSF The Dutchman and Determination 15G. Both bulls had yearling weight EPDs of +60.1 lb.

MSU Prospector 508 topped the maternal division for the second consecutive year. The Maternal Milk Trait Leader had a Milk EPD of +34.5 lb.

This was the seventh annual Sire Summary published by the APHA, and this year's version features four new traits--scrotal circumference, calving ease, maternal calving ease and maternal milk. It should be even more helpful in giving Polled Hereford breeders and commercial cow-calf producers a unique collection of data to guide them in selecting bulls for use in their breeding programs.

1988 Sire Summaries can be purchased for $10 from APHA, 4700 E. 63rd St., Kansas City, Mo. 64130. Other selection tools available are a computerized sire sort listing and a micro-computer sire sorting package.

Aluminum Bodies for the Agri-Industry

Back in 1938, when Menno Eby Sr. began making wagons and cattle trucks, he was determined to give farmers strong, wooden truck bodies at a competitive price.

Some things change. Others stay the same.

Today, M. H. Eby, Inc. produces a wide variety of sturdy and reliable truck bodies for agri-business. Everything from livestock bodies through stake bodies to grain and bulk bodies. All at competitive prices.

But now every Eby body is all-aluminum. Consider some of the advantages you get over traditional wood and steel construction:

- As much as 50% lighter — allows for increased payloads.
- It will never rust through or rot.
- No need to paint.
- Overall maintenance costs are greatly reduced.
- Just an occasional power washing keeps aluminum bodies looking new for years.
- They have much better resale value.

What's more, you can always tell Eby what you want on your body. Everything we make is custom-built. A long list of options available for every body style allows you to design the body you need for your operation.

Give us a call, or write, to find out more about the lightweight alternative.

FARM & RURAL PROPERTY DIVISION

WHO'S NUMBER 1?

If you are a Penn State Football Fan, you know the answer.

If you are comparing Realtors, several different measures can be used: One is the size of the inventory; Another is the number of salespeople. Perhaps a better way is to compare the QUALITY and PROFESSIONALISM of the services provided. HERITAGE REALTY's Farm and Rural Property Division counsels each seller on the best way to market his property, prepares accurate detailed brochures for each listing and follows through with a proven advertising and marketing program, including detailed videotaping of all operating farms.

Whether you are buying or selling a farm or rural property in Central Pennsylvania, we would be pleased to put our 15 years of farm and rural property experience to work for you.

Call or write for our free lists, or see our bi-weekly Lancaster Farming ad in the November 7th issue.

YORK — Continuing an annual tradition of several years, the Agribusiness Committee of the York Area Chamber of Commerce will sponsor Farm Visitation Day in York County.

On Sunday, November 22, from 1:00 through 4:00 p.m., six diverse farms in the Dover-Thomasville-East Berlin area will be opened to visitors. The annual Farm-City week tour, opening Thanksgiving week, celebrates York County's abundant agricultural production and offers visitors a close-up view of working farms and agribusinesses.

Hosts for the annual York Farm Visitation Day include:

1. Martin's Potato Chips, Inc., Thomasville R1. A locally owned company since its inception in 1941, Martin's Potato Chips is owned by Kenneth and Sandra Potter, who purchased it in 1971 from Harry and Fairy Martin. An average of 250,000 pounds of potatoes is used weekly for processing, using local potatoes during the growing season. Martin's has a four-state distribution area, and employs 115, primarily York County residents.

2. Smysers' Richlawn Farm, 2691 East Berlin Road. Rodney and Robert Smyser's dairy has 75 top-producing registered Holsteins, milking with pipeline system, and a unique ram-pump manure handling system. Crops are produced on 700 acres.

3. Mike Hoffman, 4200 Davidsburg Road. A family farm with commercial beef and swine production. The Hoffman operation includes a large grain storage facility with in-bin drying and air handling, along with the full lineup of farm equipment for cropping 2000 acres.

4. Double T Farm, 3920 West Canal Road. Tom Wolf maintains 11 Thoroughbred brood mares and boards race track horses. Facilities include a large run-in shed and meadow paddocks.

5. T&J Farms, R21, Big Mount Road. Owned by Thomas Bross III, Tim Livingston is the herdsman for the purebred Angus operation. This show winning herd includes 30 Angus brood cows, a newly-remodeled show barn, and 140 acres of ground.

6. Eisenhart Brothers' Dairy Farm, Thomasville R1. The Rodney and Keith Eisenhart families operate this second-generation dairy farm with 200 milking cows and 260 crop acres. Cattle are housed in a free-stall setup, wtih milking parlor and gravity flow liquid manure handling system.

Visitors may begin their tour at any of the six host farms, and visit as many as they wish as time permits during the three-hour visitation period. There is no charge for the Farm Visitation tour.

Chester Farm City Tour

BY MARJORIE KEEN
Chester Co. Correspondent

CHESTER — Six Chester County farm operations will be open to the public from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, November 21. This year's Farm City Tour in the Cochranville-Unionville-Kennett Square area has been planned to illustrate that agriculture is a diverse and complex business.

Cochranville Agway, with the largest liquid fertilizer plant in the county, will hold open house. Its grain elevator serves farmers in Chester and Delaware Counties, Pennsylvania; New Castle County, Delaware; and Cecil County, Maryland.

Near Cochranville is Derry Meeting Farm, owned and managed by Marshall and Bettina Jenney. Thoroughbred race horses are given meticulous attention from birth on the 420 acre farm. Visitors will see four barns and six turn-out sheds. Among notable Derry Meeting Farm horses is the sales topper at Saratoga this year, a yearling by Mr. Prospector out of Waya.

Ninety Holstein cows are milked in a brand new double five parlor at Brooklawn Farm in Unionville fox hunting country. Owned by Mrs. John B. Hannum and managed by Michael Ayers, Brooklawn boasts a herd average of 21,300 pounds. This stop closes at 3:30 p.m.

Directly across from Brooklawn Farm on Route 842 is Foxhill Farm, owned and operated by Brian and Judy Jordan. The Angus beef cattle breeding operation focuses efforts on bulls and cows that will upgrade other herds. Foxhill's best of stock compete nationally, winning trophies and promoting Foxhill's line of Angus.

Also in Unionville area are Alan and Paula Johnson's Northbrook Orchards. Visitors can watch apple grading, drink fresh pressed cider and eat apple cider doughnuts at Northbrook. The orchards have a pick-your-own operation and a retail store.

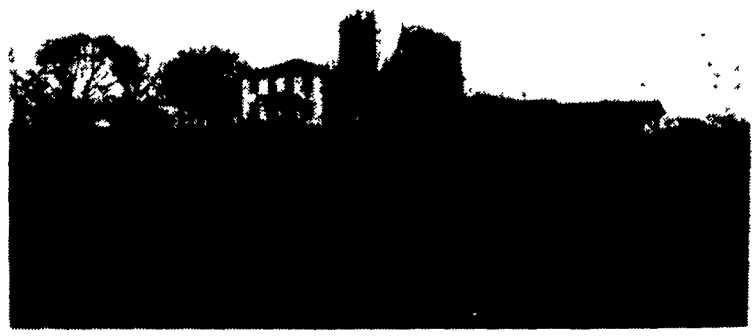
Mushroom growing houses will be open for inspection at Phillips Mushroom Farm, in the heart of the world's mushroom capital, Kennett Square. Owned by Marshall and Donald Phillips and managed by Jim Angelucci, Phillips grows, processes, ships and sells retail both white and exotic mushroom varieties.

At a separate stop, the mushroom museum at Phillips Mushroom Place will be open for an admission fee. The museum is one-half mile south of Longwood Gardens on U.S. Route 1.

Chester County Farm City Tour is sponsored by the farm operations that will hold open house, by Chester-Delaware County Farmers Association, Chester County Cooperative Extension Service and Southeast Farm Credit Service.

Linda Hicks and David Hodge of the Farmers Association are in charge of planning and publicizing the tour. Speaking of the farm operations that will play host next Saturday, Hodge said, "They are businesses that make a living but also they are businesses that we like to live with. We want to share some of that personal feeling."

Visitors are asked not to smoke on any of the farms.



Brooklawn Farm, Unionville, will be open for tours during Farm City Week.

Bird Hunting: A Growing Profession

UNIVERSITY PARK — More than 1,000 people in Pennsylvania now raise game birds. This is a ten-fold increase in fifteen years. Pheasants, chukar, quail, wild turkey, mallard ducks, and a few rare breeds like ornamental pheasants or Hungarian partridge make up most of these birds.

Nearly all these people are part-time growers, a little more than a dozen farmers are full-time commercial game bird enterprises. Many hundred new part-time and full-time jobs have been created by this growing industry. Game bird growers tell us that producing birds is financially risky, biologically variable, and in some cases, heartbreaking, but still exciting.

A conference on game birds will be held on February 29 and March 1, 1988 at the J. O. Keller Conference University, Penn State University, University Park, Pennsylvania. This year the program will focus on quality production and hunting. This is usually attended by approximately 100 growers and hunting club operators from eight different states and a few foreign countries.

If you would like a copy of the program and an application blank, please write to: Game Bird Conference, 306 Ag. Admin. Bldg., Penn State University, University Park, PA 16802 or call (814)865-8301.

Chester 4-H'ers

Appreciation was expressed to the volunteer leaders for their time and efforts toward providing a meaningful 4-H Dairy Program. Chester County Black and White leaders are Fred Mast and Harvey Stoltzfus. Mildred Seeds has served 25 years as Chester Valley leader. She is also Dairy Bowl coach.

Charles Wollaston and Richard Hoopes are Manor Dairy Club leaders. Oxford Dairy Club is led by Jim Stanton and Ed Brackbill. Patty Jenkins leads Southern Chester County Community Club.

Tri-Community Club is led by Lester High and Ed Kulp. Glenn Stoltzfus coaches the county 4-H dairy judging team.

Entertainment following dinner and presentation of the awards consisted of an illustrated talk by Richard Talley about the 4-H trip to Masstock Dairy Farms in Macon County, Georgia, last June. Another illustrated talk was givern by Chester County Dairy Princess Elisa Wilkinson.

Chester Valley and Manor clubs coordinated banquet and program arrangements.

DESIGNING NEW GENES

Our marvelous Science can now alter the genetic makeup of plants and animals. Big deal! Nature has been doing it since life began, but at a much slower rate. Once in a while however, she kicks out a sudden change, and we call it a "freak", or mutant. Now, science can turn them out at will.

The controversey surrounding "gene tampering" certainly is justified by the serious implications of this new science. To see why, we need to look at both sides of the question.

On the negative side, there is fear that genetically engineered life forms may turn out to be lethal to existing life on the earth. Once new viruses or bacteria that have been artificially created are released into the biological system of mankind, they are virtually unrecallable. It's like playing Russian roulette, not knowing which barrel carries the loaded shell.

There may also be serious ethical questions roused by tinkering with genes. Some people accuse scientists of playing God. It is possible to cross genetic particles from one species to another, creating some interesting "monsters". Growth hormones have been implanted into experimental rats, making them grow faster and bigger than normal. Maybe the swine growers would like to apply this to their pigs, but the rats I know are big enough, thank you.

Genetic Engineering has a very positive side. We even have a precident in the Bible. Read GENESIS, CHAPTER 30, for a thrilling drama of Romance, Politics, and Science. It tells how Jacob pulled a fast one on his father-in-law Laban. After Laban tricked him into marrying Leah instead of Rachael, Jacob bargained to tend Labans flocks. After seven years of "genetic engineering", Jacob had all of the fattest, speckeled and spotted animals, while Laban ended up with the culls. His methods might be questioned by todays breeders, but nevertheless they worked for him. He even got Rachael in the bargain!

The bio-technology of gene grafting has the potential to greatly improve breeding in farm animals. Many years of patient and careful breeding can be compressed into a much shorter time by genetic engineering. The problem is, can a mad scientist start tampering with human genes and mess up the progress of the whole human race?

A scientist has already genetically altered a bacteria, which, when injected into Elm trees, protected them from Dutch Elm disease. That is harmless enough, even quite an accomplishment considering the years of fruitless struggle to preserve our stately elms. But his action has sparked a nationwide debate about whether genetic engineering should be strictly regulated by the Government. The argument runs all the way from "beware biological roulette", to the opposite extreme of "Make the most of Designer Genes".

Some people argue for Government control of Gene-splitting. Looking back at how Governments have handled Atom-splitting and Nuclear fission, it might be better to leave genetics to the Scientists. After all, research is expensive, and industry will not support a lost cause. If Gene splitting can cure AIDS, or Dutch Elm disease, or my head cold, I'm willing to pay for it. Just keep it out of the hands of those who would use it to produce a super-breed of "cannon fodder".

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS ON IMMIGRATION REFORM AND HAZARDOUS SUBSTANCES SAFETY

In this article I would like to address two recent developments involving employment matters and public safety concerns about hazardous material found on a person's property. These topics should be of interest to both agricultural producers and agribusiness firms. In the case of hazardous materials, application of the issue will be broader than to simply those situations that involve employers.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE IMMIGRATION REFORM AND CONTROL ACT OF 1986

In this act Congress chose to deal with the problem of illegal immigrants working in the United States by making employers responsible to verify the identity and eligibility of all employees hired by that employer. This requirement applies to nearly all employers. A major exception applies to those who employ people to perform domestic work in private homes on an intermittent or sporadic basis.

The initial obligation facing employers is to document the required information for those employees who were hired on or after November 7, 1986 and before June 1, 1987. The Immigration and Naturalization Service has prepared a form that employers complete and this form is known as the "I-9" form. For employees hired between the dates listed above who are still employed on June 1, 1987, the employer must verify the employee's identity and eligibility to work in the U.S. before September 1, 1987. Employees hired before November 7, 1987 are not subject to the act and the employer need not request any information from such employees. For employees hired on or after June 1, 1987, the employer is required to complete the I-9 form within three business days of the hire.

Under these requirements the employer must establish a procedure to require the employee to provide proof of identify and eligibility to work in the United States. The procedure should apply to all employees, not simply those who appear to be foreign born. To comply with this, employers should refer to Immigration and Naturalization Service "Handbook for Employers". If you are an employer and have not received a copy of this handbook, you can request a copy by writing the Immigration and Naturalization Service office in Philadelphia, 601 Market Street, Room 1321, U.S. Courthouse, Philadelphia, PA 19106. Address your request to the "Employer Relations Officer". Obtaining this handbook is important to employers because it contains the I-9 form that must be completed and also provides lists of various kinds of documents that will serve to establish an employee's identity and eligibility to work in the U.S. A toll free telephone number, 1-800-777-7700, has also been established for employers seeking information.

In addition to obtaining the information early in the employment process, employers are responsible to retain the I-9 forms for at least three years or one year more than the employee's period of employment, whichever period is longer. These documents can be inspected by officials from the Immigration and Naturalization Service. Failures to comply with the requirement to complete the form or retain it for the required period of time are violations that may subject an employer to the fines and other penalties that are provided. In considering these requirements, employers should not lose sight of the fact that under this law the employer is the person who is responsible to verify identity and eligibility to work in the United States. Whatever penalty applies to the illegal alien who works in this country is in addition to the employer's responsibility. This means that even though an employer may never hire an illegal alien, that employer may still be responsible for failing to meet the requirements of the law.

PUBLIC SAFETY CONCERNS ABOUT HAZAROUS SUBSTANCES

Within the last few years much activity has focused on the question of hazardous materials and the obligation of employers and others who keep these materials on their premises to share this information with the general public. Pennsylvania's Worker and Community Right to Know Act broadly covered this topic and gave the general public very specific rights to request and obtain information from employers.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) also adopted a hazard communication standard that focused solely on the question of an employer's obligation to his or her employees. This stems from the fact that OSHA is an agency of the U.S. Department of Labor which by its own limits can only deal with labor issues. This situation left some employers subject to OSHA rules for their obligation to employees and state rules for their obligation to the general public.

This topic has now been further influenced by the Congressional adoption of the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 19086 (SARA). This act continues the well known Superfund program for the clean-up of the environment, but it also added a new section entitled "Emergency Planning and Community Right to Know". The intent of this new section is to create three levels of planning for dealing with emergencies created by the release or storage of hazardous materials. These three level are state, district and local. At the state level an emergency response commission is created, at the district level an emergency planning district is created, and at the local level an emergency planning committee is created.

It is the intent of the law to involve those individuals who maintain hazardous materials on their property in the planning process. This is accomplished by requiring all individuals or facilities that maintain hazardous materials to report the presence of this material on their property to the state emergency response commission. Once having reported the presence of the material, the individual or facility will appoint a person as a facility representative. This person will participate in the local emergency planning committee as a facility response coordinator. This representative also serves as an advisor to the local agency on any new developments at the facility that affect emergency planning.

It should be mentioned that the obligation to report can apply to individuals, whether or not engaged in a business, as well as all types of businesses. The key to the requirement to report is the presence of a hazardous material on the premises.

The designation of material that is considered hazardous is a key to determining who is subject to the reporting requirement. SARA directed the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to publish a list of hazardous material for purposes of SARA. This was accomplished on April 22, 1987 when the list was published in the Federal Register for that day. This list identifies the materials that are considered hazardous and sets a threshold planning quantity for each item. This threshold planning quantity becomes the minimum amount of the material that will trigger the obligation to report the presence of the material to the state commission. For example under the regulation Dicrotophos (Bidrin) has a threshold planning quantity of 100 pounds. This means that an individual or facility that has at least 100 pounds of Dicrotophos on the premises is required to report that to the state commission. Having less than the minimum amount creates no obligation to report.

The SARA regulations also provide for the obligation to report the release of any of the hazardous materials if the amount released exceeds the reportable release quantity for the specific material that is described in the regulations. Certain types of releases are not subject to the reporting requirement and among these is an exception for the release of material that does not extend beyond the boundaries of the facility where the material is stored. This exception could exclude typical cases where a landowner applies pesticides to his or her own property.

Among some of the other requirements found in SARA is the obligation to provide material safety data sheets and hazardous material inventories to the state and local emergency response commissions. When SARA was adopted in 1986 these requirements were applicable to those employers that were subject to OSHA's hazard communication standard. In August of 1987, OSHA announced an expansion of the hazard communication standard to more employers and, in particular, to agricultural producers and service producers. As a result more ag producers and agribusiness firms will be in the situation of trying to sort out their obligations under these three laws. Given the confusion and uncertainty that surrounded the adoption of the state law, similar conditions may be applicable now. In my next article I will try to eliminate some of this confusion and describe these obligations.

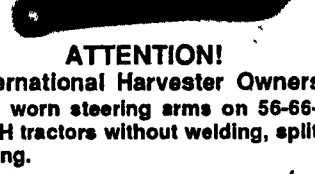
QUALITY USED PARTS

We are continually increasing our inventory of late model tractor parts. We have a good selection of quality used parts at competitive prices.



ATTENTION!
International Harvester Owners
Tighten worn steering arms on 56-66-86 series IH tractors without welding, splitting, or bolting.
A taper is machined into the new steering arms. A sleeve is then broached to match the original splines of the spindle. The outside of the sleeve is tapered to match the inside taper of the arm. These two, finely-machined surfaces then meet for a neat, permanent, surelock fit. A key is installed for added strength and safety.

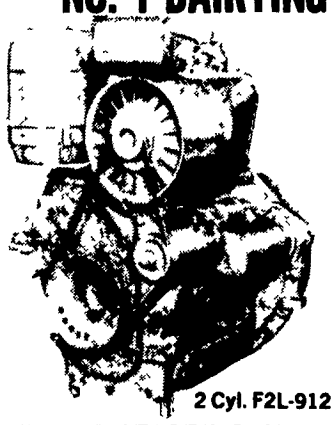
NO. 1 DAIRYING DIESEL



2 Cyl. F2L-912

KHD
DEUTZ

Since 1968 F2L-912 diesels have earned the reputation as the most reliable diesel. Don't settle for less.

EASIER STARTING: Heavy flywheel provides easy starting. No electric heater plugs.

QUIETER: Runs quieter than most water cooled diesels. Very quiet exhaust.

Continuous Duty Rating:
26.5 HP @ 1800 RPM

Fewer repair parts than comparable three-cylinder diesels - cheaper to overhaul.

It has direct injection, lube oil cooling, and oil cooled pistons. This engine has proven to survive the extreme heat of a heavy load in a small engine house better than any other engine.

Optional hydraulic apron drive provides infinite control of unloading speed. And, optional slurry sides keep manure contained 'til spreading time. Bonded-Protection, part of the reliable service and parts program, guarantees the spreader sides for the life of the spreader. Stop in and see one today.

Worried About Custom Operators Getting Around To You?

CONSIDER THIS...

- Why spend $1,000's for custom combining and have nothing but your crop to show for it?
- Buy a combine priced below wholesale from Hoober's this year and harvest your own crop.
- This combine is already depreciated, so sell it next year for what you paid for it this year - all you're out is the interest.

Make Sense?

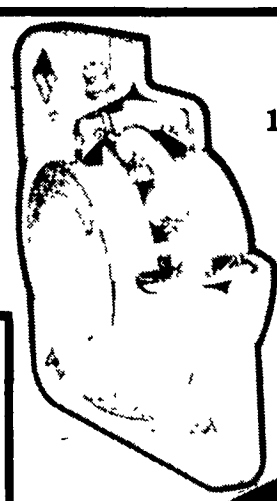
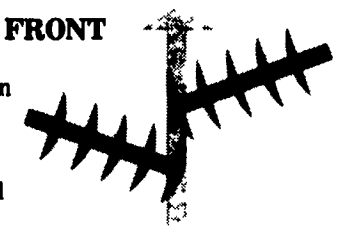
KRAUSE TILLAGE INNOVATORS INVENTED THE ROCKFLEX DISC TO BRING PLEASURE TO FARMERS

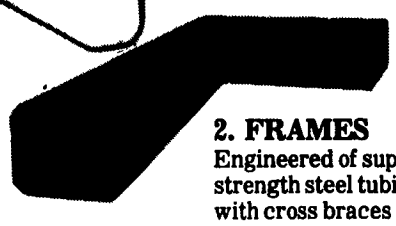
ALL KRAUSE DISCS SOLD BY HOOBERS HAVE THE 8 FEATURES SHOWN AT RIGHT



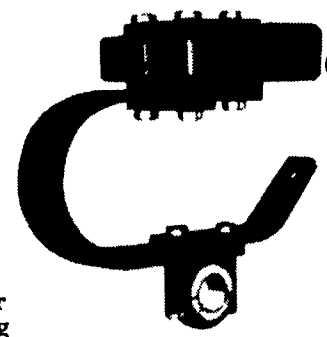
1. "SUPERSEAL" BEARINGS
Engineered to assure positive greasing directly into the cartridge. The triple lip seals keep grease in, dirt and moisture out.

5. OVERLAPPING FRONT DISC GANGS
A unique Krause design for smoother, more uniform field finish. It eliminates the center strip of untilled ground left by conventional tandem discs.

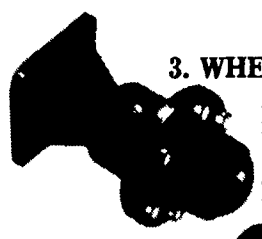




2. FRAMES
Engineered of super strength steel tubing with cross braces and gussets at major stress points.



6. "ROCKFLEX" BEARING ARMS
Krause invented the "Rock-Flex" arm in 1965. This unique C-shaped arm flexes over obstacles. It helps protect disc blades and spools from breakage. "SuperSeal" bearing is completely encased in rubber to absorb shock.



3. WHEEL HUBS
Krause Made - Precision machined and regreasable. Every hub passes rigid inspection to assure proper tolerances.

7. WING HINGES
Krause uses big 1¾" diameter bolts on heavy duty units (1½" on medium duty) with over 10" of wear surface area.

4. TIE RODS AND SPOOLS
Alloy steel tie rods are 1¾" in diameter on heavy duty units (1½" on medium duty) - (30% to 70% stronger than many other brands.) There's a nut on both ends for easy servicing.
Krause spools are ductile iron, and weigh 20-to 30-lbs. each.

8. ROCKER SHAFTS
A full 6" in diameter with big steel tube wheel arms for maximum carrying capacity. Compare ours to other makes!

SO THE FARMER ENJOYS THE 6 PLEASURES SHOWN BELOW

1...Rugged, dependable performance.

2...Excellent penetration in tough conditions.

3...Level job every time.

4...Higher resale value when it's time to trade or sell.

5...More timely planting.

6...More time with the wife.

Beef Briefs

by

Chester D. Hughes

Lancaster Co.
Extension Livestock Specialist

Beef Cattle Gleanings

For the past 15 months, and since the retirement of Penn State Extension Beef Specialist Dr. Les Burdette, I've had the good opportunity to be the author of "Beef Briefs" and have really enjoyed writing educational, informative messages to fellow cattlemen. I certainly appreciated hearing comments from so many of you in regards to the various topics that I presented. Of special enjoyment was placing third among my Extension peers in the personal column category of our State County Agent's Association communications awards program, with my article about "August -- Stress Time for Beef Cattle."

Now, I bring you good news and bad news. First... the bad news. This will be my last "Beef Briefs" column in Lancaster Farming. The good news is that Penn State has hired a new Extension Beef Specialist, Dr. John Comerford, who will continue the monthly column for beef cattle enthusiasts. I will resume writing the "Livestock Ledger" column for producers and feeders of beef, sheep, and swine.

Dr. Comerford comes to Pennsylvania from Georgia, but also worked in Missouri as an Extension Livestock Specialist. Just recently, I introduced him to Lancaster County, with a whirlwind tour of our cattle feeding industry, which included stops at the Lancaster Stockyards, New Holland Sales Stables, and a variety of feedlot operations. Dr. Comerford is certainly a welcomed addition to our Extension staff and is eager to work with everyone associated with the beef cattle industry ih Pennsylvania. I already have him signed up along with Lou Moore, Penn State Ag Economist to speak at the Lancaster County Cattle Feeder's Day on February 2, 1988.

In my last writing, I thought I might leave you with some recent gleanings from the cattle industry. Beginning with the steer, I recently read a headline that indicated that show and feedlot steers are now reaching a similar level for the first time in at least the last half decade. Translated, that means to look for champion steers that are trending downward in both height and weight to around 52 to 56 inches and 1100 to 1275 pounds, respectively. Also judges will continue to look for more emphasis on muscle, nothing other than yield grades 1 and 2, and fat cover in the range of 0.25 to 0.4 inches. Steer shows will probably never exactly match the world of the feedlot but by putting more emphasis on muscle, I think we've gotten a little more in tune with what is going on.

New data summarizing the net consumption of meats show that beef continues to be the leader by a wide margin and in no danger of being overtaken by poultry anytime soon. According to the data, Americans consumed an average 76.9 lbs. of beef and veal in 1986, but only 51.1 lbs. of chicken and turkey. That's a difference of 25.8 lbs. In the battle betwen beef and chicken specifically, the margin is even greater. Beef consumption in 1986 was 75.3 lbs. and chicken was 41.3 lbs., a difference of 34 lbs. Based on recent trends, it will be some time before poultry consumption can logically surpass beef.

USDA's approval of the new Select name for the Good beef grade opens up future marketing possibilities, but only if the name catches on with consumers and retailers. The new name, which becomes effective November 23, is supposed to provide a more positive image to the good grade of beef, and to consumers who want leaner cuts. Good/Select contains less fat than Choice and accounts for only 1 percent of graded beef or 344 million pounds. Some 50 percent is graded Choice, and 2 percent Prime.

Profits in cattle feeding are determined by three factors in a single equation: profit = (sale price x sale weight) - cost of feeder - cost of grain. Since the sale price is not known at the time of purchase, cattle feeder usually make feeder cattle buying decisions in the expected breakeven sale price needed at various feeder cattle purchase prices to cover feed and overhead costs. Midwest feeders have been bidding steer calves in the 80's or more and yearling steers in the high 70's which gives a breakeven to cover feed costs in the low 60's and to cover all costs in the high 60's. At current market prices and outlook for winter and spring, they apparently are making the decision to feed cattle at near breakeven, which gives market price for feed with a chance for more if the market strengthens.

And one final note of trivia... although America is the world leader in the beef industry, no breed of cattle is native to this country. Historians believe the Vikings first brought cattle to the Americas nearly 1000 years ago. United States cattle are now the source of superior genetics and as a result they are exported in large numbers throughout the world. American cattle were imported into this country, their traits were improved and now they are being exported to improve the native cattle of other lands. The journey of cattle in and out of this country has completed a circle. The circle from retired Beef Specialist to newly hired Beef Specialist has also been completed. I enjoyed being your host the past 15 months.

Shorthorn Activities Planned In Colorado

The National Western Stock Show, set for January in Denver, Colo., will be the site of the annual meeting of the American Shorthorn Association (A.S.A.) and the 1987 National Shorthorn Show, according to Dr. Roger E. Hunsley, executive secretary-treasurer of A.S.A.

The four-day Shorthorn event, Jan. 14 through Jan. 17, 1988, will include the election of A.S.A. officers and three board of directors, selection of a new national Lassie queen, announcement of winners of the Century Club and Sire of the Year awards, pen shows and several social activities; according to Kent Jaecke, A.S.A. activities director.

Steve McGill, A.S.A. junior activities director said there will also be many events for the juniors including market beef showmanship and a junior Shorthorn heifer show.

Recipients of a number of scholarships, as well as the Junior Breeder award, will be announced. McGill, also director of the SPR (Shorthorn Performance Records) program, said the high performing females and bulls from the SPR program will be announced during the Denver events too.

One highlight during the four-day event will be the National Seedstock Special Edition VI Show and Sale. The show of the sale cattle will be on Jan. 14 at 11 a.m. in the stadium arena while the sale, set for Jan. 16 at 1 p.m., will be in the Beef Palace Auction Arena. Hunsley said many of the top herds in the nation and Canada have consigned the finest Shorthorn genetics to this sale.

The finale of the Shorthorn event will be the National Shorthorn Show, billed as the '87 National, on Jan. 17. Hunsley, Jaecke and McGill all agreed the '87 National will consist of the best Shorthorns from across the United States. Hunsley added, "The Shorthorn breed has traditionally provided one of the highest quality shows at the National Western and this year will be no different."

Stouffer Concourse Hotel in Denver will serve as headquarters for the A.S.A. during the event. Reservations must be made through the A.S.A., 8288 Hascall St., Omaha, Ne. 68124, before Dec. 18.

Veal Dollars Approved By NYBC

ROME, NY — New York Beef Industry Council voted at its October 16th meeting to earmark an additional $25,000 for veal promotion. The entire amount will be sent to the Beef Industry Council of The National Livestock and Meat Board in Chicago to help fund the expanded "Veal. Great Anyplace." campaign. That campaign is designed to tell consumers about veal's high marks for taste, nutrition, ease of preparation and versatility.

Earlier this year the council voted to send $40,000 annually to NLMB, $20,000 of that tagged specifically for veal programs. The monies also entitle New York Beef Industry Council to two seats on The National Livestock and Meat Board. Peter Nixon of Westfield and Floyd Many of Hobart were seated on the board at its annual meeting in Portland, Or., the last week in August.

In addition to NYBC gave the go ahead to spend $2,000 to insert a four-page color advertisement in the November issue of Food Service Forum, the official publication of The New York State Restaurant Association. The "Veal, No Comparison," ads are designed to encourage a variety of veal offerings on food service menues and increase veal promotions by the restaurant industry.

A $7,735 expenditure for advertising in the Winter and Spring issues of Just For You was also approved at the October 16th meeting. Just For You is a magazine that is distributed to Hospitals in the East for their patients. The magazine addresses health issues as will the ads sponsored by The New York Beef Industry Council.

Realizing that dairy farmers are by far the largest contributors to the Beef Promotion Program in New York, the council voted to purchase an insert in the quarterly newsletter of The American Dairy Association - Syracuse, which reaches about 17,000 producers in New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. The two inserts are to cost a total of $5,700 and will inform farmers how their check-off dollars are being spent.

Additionally, New York Beef Industry Council will be supporting the efforts of The New York Farm-City Council by contributing $500 to help defray costs of the Farm City Week Kick Off event scheduled to be held at New York Historical Society November 19th in New York City.

The New York Beef Industry Council is an eleven member volunteer organization with representatives from all aspects of the beef industry. The members include: Henry Bono, Richmondville, Chairman; Peter Nixon, Westfield, Vice Chairman; Lee Shimel, Lafargeville Secretary/Treasurer; Keith Handy, Fort Plain; Floyd Many, Hobart; Harold Maynard, Campbell; Ralph Mitzel, Lancaster; Jean Shwartz, Earlville; Harrison Stanton, Holland Patent; Raymond Strahan, Friendship; and A.R. Thompson, New Woodstock.

1988 Polled Hereford Sire Summary Available

The 1988 edition of the National Polled Hereford Sire Summary is now available, sporting analysis of four new traits--scrotal circumference, calving ease, maternal calving ease and maternal milk.

"These new traits, coupled with the previous traits of calving ease, birth weight, weaning weight and yearling weight, make this summary one of the most complete tools ever made available to breeders," said Dr. Jim Gibb, director of education and research, American Polled Hereford Association (APHA).

The summary is divided into a main listing, featuring 600 active Polled Hereford sires, a Young Sire Supplement and a listing of inactive sire for reference purposes. Carcass data, when available, is also analyzed and reported.

Values are stated in expected progeny differences (EPDs) expressed in pounds. Accuracies are also given for each trait.

"Both commercial and purebred producers can make good use of this document," Gibb said. "By setting herd standards and goals, then researching the Sire Summary for the bulls which can help achieve these goals. producers can greatly increase their odds of breeding functional, growthy, efficient cattle to meet today's market needs."

Copies of the Sire Summary can be purchased for $10 from APHA, 4700 E. 63rd St., Kansas City, MO. 64130. Other selection tools available are a computerized sire sort listing and a micro-computer sire sorting package.

The 900 Series platforms come in widths from 13 to 30 feet and feature stainless-steel feedplates that run the full width of the cutter bar.

Deere Platform Improves Crop Handling

MOLINE, Il. — John Deere has introduced the 900 Series platforms with features to improve crop handling and ease of serviceability. The rigid, flexible, draper and belt pickup models come in widths from 13 to 30 ft. depending on the platform.

All 900 Series cutting platforms (except draper) feature exclusive stainless steel feedplates running the full width of the cutter bar. For faster, smoother feeding, the new Dura-Flo™ pickup reel, standard on flexible models and optional on rigid models, offers improved crop handling due to its teardrop shaped, galvanized metal bats that lessen shatter loss. Reel wrapping is reduced and crop lifting is improved with nylon pickup fingers, which can be replaced simply by removing one screw.

The adjustable rear platform strippers maintain proper auger-to-stripper bar clearance. This increases crop handling performance, especially with faster ground speeds.

Other features include bolt-on Dura-Cut™ knife sections, removable built-in center flighting extensions for 20 ft. and wider platforms to maintain uniform feeder house crop distribution, and on 24 and 30 ft. platform augers, extended pitch flighting (26 in. versus 21 in.) to feed larger combines better at faster travel speeds.

Features for operator convenience have also been added. Reel lift cylinders can be adjusted easily by one person. Operators can connect all platform hydraulic connections from the ground while the system is under pressure with "pressure release" hydraulic couplers. Also, the reel drive chain is eliminated; instead, high-strength, heat-treated gears are direct-driven from the hydrostatic reel drive.

A storage compartment has been added for an extra cutter bar knife, should in-field change be necessary.

Weaver Wins Dekalb-Pfizer Contest

Nelson Weaver, Womelsdorf, was recently recognized by DEKALB-PFIZER GENETICS for his ability to estimate crop yields. Weaver was the winner in the company's "Eye For Yield" contest held in conjunction with a field day at Dutchway Farms farm, Myerstown.

Many Lebanon County farmers attended Kervin Zimmerman's field day on September 10th to gain information on product performance and see new varieties. "Field days are an excellent opportunity for farmers to evaluate the performance of new products they plan to plant next year," commented Tom Melton, DEKALB-PFIZER's Vice President of Marketing. The company's Field Analysis Comparison Trial (FACT) program provides farmers and dealers with yield and crop management data on currently marketed hybrids and varieties. The program also generates data on experimental products to determine their merit for introduction into the marketplace.

Farmers who entered the "Eye For Yield" contest estimated the yield of several varieties in The Dutchway Farms plot. When the plot was later harvested the farmer who had made the closest guess to the actual yield won an insulated vest from the company.

Top performers in Dutchway Farm's FACT plot included:

Variety	Moisture	Yield @ 15%
1 DK672	27.7	171 41
2 DK572	23 9	169.69
3 DK636	26 5	160 24
4 T1100	26 0	159 03
5 DK547	24 1	152 35

DEKALB-PFIZER's FACT plots are grown under normal farm conditions - no special treatment is given to the plots. Farmer cooperators use management practices and equipment representative of their area. Corn hybrids are evaluated at 1,000 FACT plot locations throughout the U.S.; soybeans at 300 locations in the central and northern crop area and sorghum at 150 sites in its area of adaptability.

Yetter Disc-Chisel Coulters Designed To Cut Mini-Till Costs

COLCHESTER, Il. — Yetter disc-chisel coulters are designed to convert conventional implements for minimum tillage at a minimum cost. They can be mounted ahead of each shank to reduce implement draft while making one pass possible in trashy conditions. The self-sharpening 17" or 20" ripple blade coulters slice the trash and residue so the chisel can shatter and incorporate with less horsepower. Plugging problems are reduced and the result is better protection against wind and rain erosion.

Yetter disc-chisel coulters are equipped with sealed bearings and are spring-loaded to prevent bouncing. Downpressure can be adjusted for ground conditions, depth of cut and blade wear. These coulters are easily adapted for use with chisel plows, field cultivators and planters. They offer significant savings in time and fuel by permitting greater efficiency from existing tractor horsepower.

Regional Manager Aldus King, left, recently was named to Agri-King's prestigious President's Club in recognition of outstanding sales and customer service in 1987 in his region. King has been with Agri-King since 1976 and was named Regional Manager in 1980. Dick McGuire, right, Executive Vice President of Sales & Marketing, presented the award. Agri-King, Fulton, IL, tests feedstuffs and balances rations for livestock producers in 27 states. King's wife, Judy, center, attended. The Kings reside at R.D.1, Box 67A, Atglen.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IA — Dan Lineweaver of Lancaster recently attended the Vigortone Sales Management Institute in Cedar Rapids and graduated from the seminar.

The five-day program involved sales techniques, time and territory management, feature and benefit selling, market data, technical service and distribution sessions.

The Vigortone company offers the program to its top dealers and area sales management staff to help keep them informed of the latest advances in livestock nutrition, health and good management practices. It also deals with product information and service techniques to better prepare the student to service his local area.

Vigortone's main plant and general headquarters is located in Cedar Rapids. The company also operates plants in Fremont, Nebraska; Marion, Ohio and Thomson, Georgia.

IRS Ruling On PIK And Roll Puts Farmers In Tax Bind

NEWARK, DE — Farmers using payment-in-kind (PIK) certificates to redeem grain placed under Commodity Credit Corporation loans may have a tax problem to contend with in 1987. The problem stems from a ruling the IRS made on the tax treatment of a CCC loan redeemed with generic certificates. This is popularly called PIK and Roll. The ruling was issued after most farmers had filed their 1986 income tax returns.

The ruling, aimed at producers who use the practice, calls the act of redeeming a CCC loan with generic certificates (the PIK of PIK and Roll) a sale of the grain to the Commodity Credit Corporation. This makes the transaction a taxable event according to the IRS. Until this ruling was issued, the loan was not considered as income until the grain was sold.

How will the IRS decision affect farmers?

"This ruling can be devastating from a tax point of view," says marketing specialist Carl German, a staff member of the Extension Farm Financial Management Center at the University of Delaware. "It means that many farmers must now report the sale of more than one year's crops as income in 1987.

"At the same time," the economist says, "it leaves them with only one year's production expenses to write off against the income from more than one year's crops." This could increase their tax liability by as much as five or six times.

Can the ruling be changed?

"Since the original intent of the IRS ruling was to clear the way for the use of commodity certificates to redeem three-year reserve grain — not to alter the reporting of income on nine-month loans — we might assume the ruling will eventually be changed," German says. But until Congress has a chance to act, the income is reportable when either the grain is redeemed or the loan is taken.

Ironically, the marketing specialist says, the IRS ruling penalizes those farmers who are the best financial managers, by placing sound market strategy directly at odds with good tax planning. It takes two to three years to effectively market one year's crop.

"Hopefully," German concludes, "the ruling will be changed."

For more information on their grain marketing options under the circumstances, Delaware farmers are encouraged to contact German at 451-2511.

These farmers won their certificates in a sweepstakes conducted by Case IH dealership, C.B. Hoober & Son, Inc. in Intercourse, and by Case IH dealerships throughout the nation. Their prize certificates were delivered to them by Richard Bomberger, parts manager at C.B. Hoober & Son, Inc. and Jack Vulgaris, Case IH regional parts traveler. Both winners names were picked in a second chance drawing.

The contest was part of the Case IH Parts Payback Sweepstakes sponsored by the agricultural equipment manufacturer last summer. Across the United States there were 401 winners. The grand prize was a fully equipped Case International 1896 tractor, list price of $43,249. Twenty individuals won first prizes of $500 certificates; 60 took home $250 certificates; and 320 were awarded $100 certificates.

Crop Corn, Sorghum Producers To Receive Final Payments

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture will make approximately $3 billion in final payments to eligible producers of 1986 crop corn and sorghum, a USDA official said today.

Eligible corn producers will receive about $2.7 billion and sorghum producers about $300 million in final payments for their 1986 crops, according to Milton Hertz, executive vice president of the USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation.

The final payments, combined with advance payments made during program signup and additional payments made in March, will result in 1986 program payments of approximately $6.4 billion for corn producers and $585 million for sorghum producers.

Hertz said the final payments will be paid half in cash and half in generic commodity certificates. The cash portion of the payments is subject to a 4.3 percent reduction in compliance with the sequester order issued under the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act. The portion paid in generic commodity certificates is not subject to the reduction.

Final payment rates are determined based on the difference between the basic loan rate for each commodity and either the national weighted average market price for each commodity September 1986 through August 1987 or the announced loan rates for corn and sorghum, whichever is higher.

The 1986 final payment rate for corn is 48 cents per bushel, the difference between the basic loan level of $2.40 and the announced loan rate of $1.92 per bushel. For sorghum, the final payment rate is 46 cents per bushel, based on the $2.28 basic loan level and the $1.82 per bushel announced loan rate.

Hertz said the final payments for corn and sorghum will be mailed by the county offices of the USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in early October.

Poultry Producers Financial Protection Act

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Senate today followed the lead of the House of Representatives and passed H.R. 3457, the Poultry Producers Financial Protection Act of 1987.

The Grange/Farm Bureau-drafted legislation amends the Packers and Stockyards Act of 1921 to extend similar financial protection to poultry producers that red meat producers have enjoyed since 1976. The bill also clarifies the jurisdiction of the Packers and Stockyards Administration with respect to poultry and poultry products.

"The passage of the poultry bill represents over two years of negotiations between the Grange, the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Broiler Council, and the National Turkey Federation," said Edward Andersen, Master of the National Grange. "The package will provide the financial protection, through the prompt payment requirements and the statutory trust provision, that poultry producers have needed for some time now. I am extremely pleased that we have been successful in providing similar protection for poultry producers that has been afforded producers in other segments of agriculture," he continued.

The legislation 1) requires that payment for poultry — and for the services to produce it — be made within specific time limits; 2) provides a trust provision for the benefit of unpaid poultry producers in case of a live poultry dealer bankruptcy; 3) provides the Packers and Stockyards Administration the authority to enforce the prompt payment and trust provisions; 4) retains the Packers and Stockyards Administration's jurisdiction over live poultry (these provisions will be enforced only through U.S. district court); 5) clarifies that the Federal Trade Commission, not the Packers and Stockyards Administration, has jurisdiction over the marketing practices of poultry products.

New Multi Fuel Stove Burns 100% Shelled Corn

The Nordic Stove Division of American Road Equipment Co. has introduced the new Erik "Elite-M" multi-fuel stove for home heating.

The Elite-M is designed with a special auto-feed fuel hopper that feeds pelletized or other fuel sources to the burn ring at a preset rate determined by the owner.

The first truly multi-fuel heating appliance, the Elite-M is designed to burn either standard wood pellets or pelletized plant forage products such as almond hulls, sugar beet pulp, cotton gin residue, wheat straw, etc. By simply changing the burn ring, the owner can also heat with shelled corn or stoker coal. Shelled corn can be burned without the need to mix it with pellets. And, when pellets are not available, the owner can add a grate and burn lump coal or regular logs.

The Elite-M is a clean-burning unit, exceeding all existing state and Federal emission requirements for noncatalytic stoves, as well as exceeding limits for catalytic stoves. Efficiency ratings have exceeded 74% in official tests, and the Elite-M has a heat output of 9,900 BTUs/hr. on low burn up to 52,000 BTUs/hr. on high burn.

A unique feature of the new Elite-M is the wide, one-piece etched glass door for viewing the flames, with a choice of gloss black or 11 other decorator colors for the door trim ring and stove top. Optional hopper extensions are available, so the owner can load up to a 3-day fuel supply in the hopper at one time.

In addition to fireplace and stove specialty shops, the company plans to market the new Elite-M through farmer-dealers in selected areas.

For additional details on the new Elite-M multi-fuel stove, contact: Nordic Stove Division, American Road Equipment Co., 4201 N. 26th Street, Omaha, NE 68111. Or, call toll-free (800) 451-2575. (In Nebraska, call 402-451-2575.)

Agricultural Entrepreneur Development Program Provides Funds

HARRISBURG — Citing it as an enhancement to statewide economic development efforts, Gov. Robert P. Casey has launched a unique $1 million initiative to expand agricultural industry in Pennsylvania.

"This new, statewide agricultural development program, which I proposed in my 1987-88 budget, will advance overall economic development in the Commonwealth and particularly will invigorate agriculture," Casey said.

"The Agricultural Entrepreneur Development Program (AEDP) provides matching funds for creation or expansion of new facilities for processing agricultural products," Casey added. "By enlarging the processing capacity for agricultural products, we strengthen the marketplace position of Pennsylvania farmers."

Under the program, applicants can seek dollar-for-dollar matching grants of $10,000 to $100,000 for constructing or expanding traditional or non-traditional agriculture processing facilities that add value to Pennsylvania's farm commodities. The funds will be available to individuals, cooperatives or private concerns.

The program is the first of its kind in the nation.

Casey said the Department of Agriculture is accepting proposals for AEDP funds.

Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff said, "Pennsylvania's farmers can't sell what they produce without the support of a strong processing industry. The dairyman can't function without the milk processor, the beef and pork producers can't market their meat without the slaughterer and meat packer, and the grain farmer needs the miller and the baker."

The guidelines for obtaining a grant include: potential for job creation; utilization for any new technology or state-of-the-art equipment; market demand for the final product; type of farm commodity to be processed; and experience and credentials for applicants.

The panel will also consider a project's impact upon Pennsylvania agriculture and rural poor; location in rural areas and the use of rural labor; creation of an increase in market demand for a particular farm commodity; and involvement of small businesses that show a potential for growth.

The proposals will be screened by a seven-member panel headed by Wolff. The other panelists will include a rural sociologist, an agricultural engineer, an agricultural economist; a business finance professional, an expert in processing technology and a member of the Governor's Economic Development Partnership Board.

The panel will begin reviewing proposals next month.

Information concerning the program is available by contacting the Bureau of Agricultural Development in the Department of Agriculture.

USDA Changes Beef Grader

UNIVERSITY PARK — The USDA recently announced a change in the grades of beef carcasses to become effective November 23. This will change "USDA Good" to "USDA Select." The change was brought about by a petition from a Washington-based consumer group concerned that consumers misunderstood the grade "Good" to be inferior.

"This new grading system will help market low-fat red meat," says Dr. Bill Henning, assistant professor of animal science at Penn State. "The change will also help consumers identify this leaner meat."

Beef grading is not mandatory, but done on a fee basis in large packing plants to aid in wholesale marketing. Grading should not be confused with inspection, which is done in virtually all commercial plants and certifies the meat as wholesome, clean and correctly labeled.

Beef grades are determined by two factors, maturity and marbling. Maturity is the physiological age of the animal, determined by the degree of ossification of the skelton and the color of the meat. Young beef is a bright cherry red. Marbling is the intramuscular deposits of fat or little flecks of fat distributed throughout the muscle. The higher the amount of marbling, the higher the grade.

"Prime' is the highest grade, followed by 'Choice,' 'Good' and 'Standard,' "comments Henning. "The higher grade meats have more juiciness and flavor and can stand more abuse, like overcooking, than the lower grades, but there's not a wide difference in palatability."

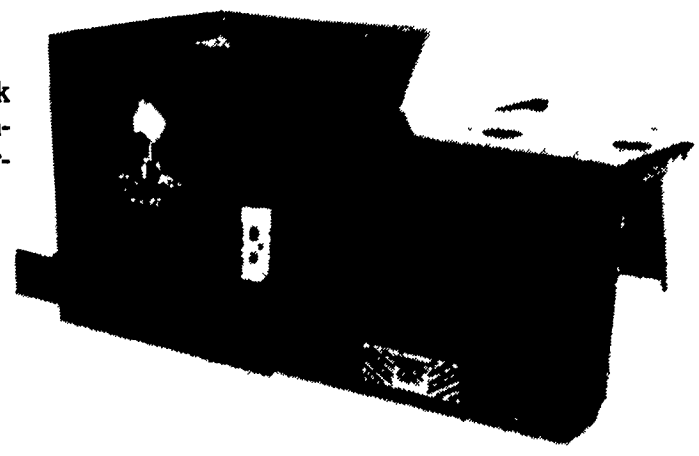
Marketing strategies have conveyed to consumers that "Good" is less than desirable while retailers have capitalized on the grade. "Choice," However, a recent USDA study indicates that most consumers do not have a preference for "Choice" over "Good." In the Southwest and West, consumers actually preferred the "Good" grade, although consumers in the East have clear preference for "Choice" Quality.

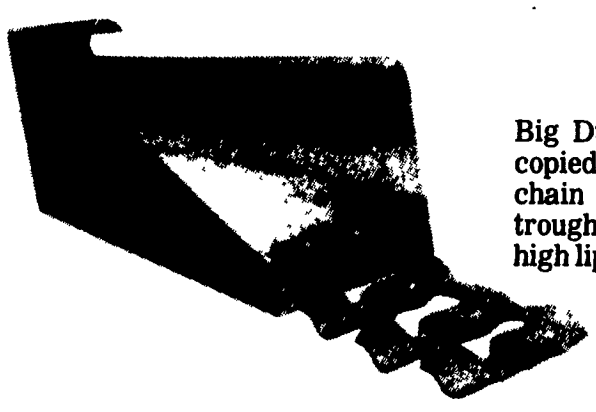
With the publication of new nutritive information and as consumers become more conscious of diet and health issues, the group that initiated the name change felt that "Select" would more appropriately identify leaner beef cuts. The beef industry, which supported the change, also feels that the name "Select" will convey a more positive image for this grade of beef and for beef in general.

BIG DUTCHMAN FEEDING SYSTEMS FOR LAYER AND PULLET CAGES

Built on Thoroughly Proven Designs. No Other Feeder Beats it for Reliability and Performance

The straight hopper drive unit is easy to work with and simplifies maintenance. The standard hopper is powered by a helical gearmotor drive.





Big Dutchman feeder chain is the original, which is now copied by nearly all poultry equipment companies. The chain literally carries feed in the trough. The Big Lip trough effectively reduces spillage because of the extra high lip and curl..

Corner wheel assembly guides the chain and feed around the turns to make the endless flat chain conveyor possible. The fluted idler wheel and corner rail keep the chain running true.

Why Not Breed For Mastitis Resistance?

DR. GEORGE
F. W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, De. — We now select and breed our cows for milk pounds, milkfat content, milk protein content, feet and legs, stature, dairy character, udder shape, quality, attachments, and even polledness or red color. So why not try breeding for resistance to mastitis?

That's a good question. Through DHIA we're now testing a large number of animals — perhaps three-quarters of all DHIA cows in the United States — monthly for somatic cell counts. Some preliminary research indicates that these data reflect some genetic differences and that before long bull proofs may be available on these differences.

Does this information have any value at the farm level?

We presently use the somatic cell count (SCC) data to straighten out our milk tank levels and get that much needed bonus. Would it pay to select our cows and service sires on the basis of this information? If it worked, there sure could be a lot of profit in such an approach.

Studies in this country have shown that the average U.S. dairy cow loses $100 per year due to subclinical and clinical mastitis or due to what SCC tell us. Many researchers in Englans, the Netherlands, Germany and Austria have come to the same conclusions.

So what kind of success could we expect from selecting and breeding for mastitis resistance? This is the crucil question that we must ask. Here's a simple formula that can give the answer: superiority of the parents time heritability divided by generation interval.

If, for example, a certain selected cow and a certain selected bull were 10 percent above your herd average in mastitis resistance, and if the heritability of resistance was 10 percent, you could expect their heifer calves to have 1 percent better resistance than other calves in your herd. And if the generation interval between the original cow and her next daughter, whenin milk after the first lactation, is 4 years, then your expected progress per year in breeding for mastitis resistance would be one quarter of 1 percent (.25 percent).

What do we actually know about the heritability of mastitis resistance — the only variable in the above formula? Quite a bit.

New European research involving 6,349 cows over 3 years shows that, while clinical and subclinical mastitis have many causes, most cases are due to streptococcal or staphylococcal infection. In these studies, the number of streptococcal mastitis infections increased with the age of the cow, while those doe to staphylococci seemedc to be independent of age. Staphylococcal mastitis appeared to be more frequent in summer but less frequent in fall, while streptococcal infections seem to have no relation to season.

Heritability calculations are understandably low under such circumstances. Based on bacteriological examination, these new studies found resistance to streptococcal mastitis to be 5.5 percent heritable, while resistance to staphylococcal mastitis was 8.9 percent heritable. When the researchers used indirect tests — cush as the California mastitis test or somatic cell counts — the heritability percentages were even lower because of built-in errors.

These numbers refer to the percent of resistance to each type of mastitis infection that can be explained by genetics. The balance — 100 minus 5.5 or 8.9 — is not heritable. In other words, 94.5 percent of the streptococcal mastitis and 90.1 percent of the staphylococcal mastitis in the cows in the above study were due to non-genetic causes.

What conclusions can we draw from this latest information? Using the formula I gave earlier: 10 percent superiority in the parents times 5.5 percent of 8.9 percent mastitis resistance heritability divided by 4 gives you an expected average progress per year of 0.1 or 0.2 percent.

Based on these calculations, my advice is that you'll make faster, better and more profitable progress by correcting all the many known environmental, non-genetic causes of mastitis and of elevated SCC in your herd than you will by trying to breed cows for mastitis resistance.

The Soil Conservationist With A Suitcase

When Larry Parvin pulls up at a farm in Blair County and gets out of the car with a suitcase, the farmer can relax. Parvin's not coming to stay. He is just bringing the latest in soil conservation technical assistance to the farm.

As district conservationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service, Parvin is a welcome visitor on most farms in the county. He helps farmers develop conservation plans for controlling soil erosion, improving water quality and increasing farm operation efficiency. And most of the time, he travels with a suitcase.

Larry Parvin, soil conservationist (L) and John Spitzer, SCS agronomist work with new suitcase computer.

Parvin has equipped a standard two-suiter with a portable computer terminal, a disk drive, a printer, and an acoustical coupler.

The computer can operate alone at the farm or by using the farmer's phone, it can be hooked up to the larger computer in the SCS office. Out on the farm, it can be powered by rechargeable batteries, a car cigarette lighter or a standard household or barn electric outlet.

"This system allows me to take my office files with me to any farm," says Parvin. "The farmer and I can develop a conservation plan and the farmer can have his copy before I leave the farm. This saves the farmer time and it saves me time. I am averaging 4 to 5 hours per planning unit as compared to 7 to 10 hours before."

Parvin admits that the computer is not standard SCS equipment, but something that he developed. He points out that the computer is an easily obtained, relatively inexpensive 24K portable computer. Parvin has upgraded his computer to 96K storage.

According to Parvin, the portable computer is particularly valuable for developing contracts with farmers for an accelerated land treatment project in the Clover Creek Watershed. It is also used for field reviews of erosion and sediment control plans with land developers.

In the office, the portable computer is used for word processing, preparing quarterly reports, time accounting and other office jobs.

Parvin said most farmers are impressed by the operation and appreciate the efficient service. A few, however, are wary. "I never get my suitcase out," he said, "until I get to know the farmers.

New VITAVAX GERMATE PLUS DIAZINON • LINDANE

You can't buy a better planter box treatment for corn.

It's all of the insect protection you've come to expect from Diazinon and Lindane, plus the powerful systemic disease protection of Vitavax.®

Helping your corn get off to a fast, healthy start.

Most commercial corn seed comes treated with Captan, but this only protects your corn against seed borne disease. Because Vitavax is a true systemic, it actually penetrates the seed and then translocates in the seedling to give you several weeks of control against Rhizoctonia, Fusarium plus other seed and seedling diseases.

Add all of that to the powerful seed corn maggot, seed corn beetle and wireworm protection you get from the Diazinon and Lindane, and you can see why we say "You can't buy a better planter box treatment for corn."

Germate Plus. The most complete planter box treatment ever offered, and for about the price you've paid for less protection in the past.

Their testimonials are real-world evidence that back up our research results. In university tests and on commercial dairy farm trials, IsoPlus fed as directed increased milk production 1,000 pounds or more per cow per lactation . . . with no harmful side effects, no milk residues and no increase in feed intake.

The testimonials of these dairymen and others like them are proof that IsoPlus pays. Need more reasons to try IsoPlus? Ask your feed supplier. Or call Eastman toll-free 800-EASTMAN (800-327-8626).
